MAXIM PRESENTS

BY CHANCELLOR DONGALOR, GUEST EDITOR AND DESPOT

Ready the catapults: It's time for a familiary throw-down.

- 1 Kill one to rouse the others. That "one" would preferably be the fiend with the flaming sword.
- 2 Give goody bags to the survivoorsjuSt to let them know they're welcome.

 It's important to foster some good will among your future peons so they don't turn against you.
- 3 Don't underestimate the power of the bearskin codpiece. If your subjects say you can pull it off, you've got world domination on lock.
- 4 Pull rank to get wenches. Maidens love a man in power, even if the's not exactly male model material. I mean, I could be a male model if I wanted, I just can't be dashing off to photo shoots at a moment's notice when the empire depends on me...
- 5 Fear nothing! Apart from turtles.

 Horrible little creatures.

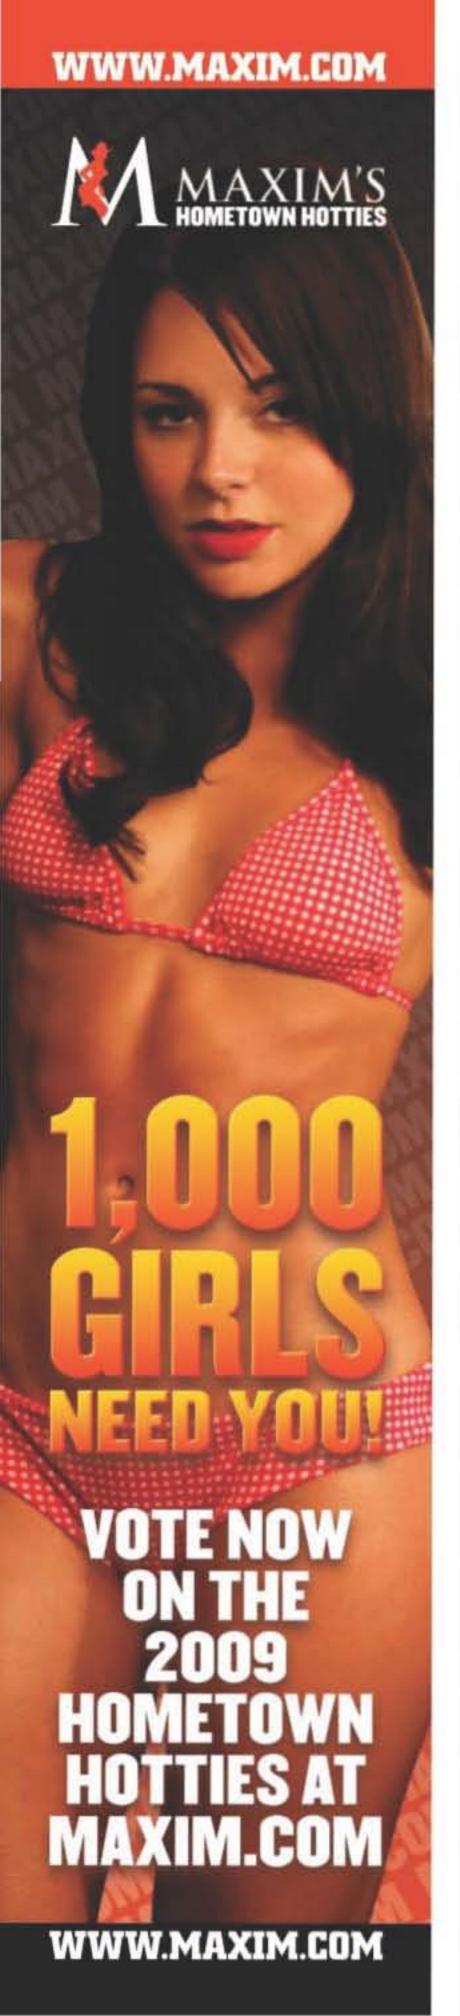

- 6 Surround yourself with idiots.
 That way you'll always be the smartest
 Chamcellor in the foom.
- Be evil...but not too evil. You want to startle them a bit, maybe scare the chickens and whatnoot-mot stakk their skulls in the village square.
- What happens in the royal bed chamber stays in the royal bed chamber. To minimize any PR debacles, of course, the ladies in waiting should sign nondisclosure agreements.
- Watch out for flaming swords...JK!
 That hack Kröd Mändoon and his merry band of complete idiots don't stand a chance against me.
- Tune in to Kröd Mändoon and the flamming Sword off Fine, premiering on Comedy Central April 9 at 10 p.m. EST.

Spring Cleaning

We're fresh out of Lemon Pledge, but we're still scrubbing out our dirtiest mailbags Enjoy!

Jarmom lt

When Maxim Online gave me theorhalice to VQte for several (overs, little did [kmow I'd pick the bealthygracing the February issue. So I'm thinking, What goes together? Peanut butter and jam, ham and eggs... How about Jamie Gunns and me? Hey, can't blame a guy for dreaming!

Josh L. Conway, SC

Yeah, how "bout H, Jamine Oh, damn. She just shot us witha cross Dow. Sorry, dude. Next time maybe say "peanut butter and jelly" like u normal human.

Sharing Is Caring

I thought your February issue was awesome! And as a present I bought my brother a subscription for 2009. He also is a big fan of the magazine! He and I will be looking forward to next month's issue for another one of those great sexcolumns.

Mike viae-mail

Turn to page 54 and you and your bro can enjoy a fresh new sex column._together! You can hold mit side, and he'll hold the other. It it is weird at all.

Stretching the Truth

For God's sake, you Maxim editors Photoshop out every trace of nipple on your gorgeous models, but then you leave Tracy Morgan's horrifying stretch marks for all the world to see ["Nasty Boy;" February]? How in the world can you justify that?

Tony Gasparich Lititz, PA

Sorry, Tony, but unfortubilitiely Mr. Morgan threattented to "put a baby deep inside us" through a hale in his FUBU swelltpamts iffweldilln't depict him with total photofdalism.

Future Shock

You guys make me really nervous. Your recent article "Surviving the Apocalypse" [February] is similar to one you published years ago about potential terrorism scenarios ["World War III," August 2000]. I would love to write more about this, but I'm off to the hardware store to stock up on several Cases of duct tape.

Thomas R. Stahler via e-mail

Sorry, Tom, but one last duct-tapt-wmappped orgy with your collection of garden ghiddles won't prevent the intitable apocalypse!

School Daze

I am a journalism student with a great sense of humor and a dirty mind. Thanks for proving that journalists don't have to be uptight and serious. I appreciate the sarcastic language in the mag and all the laughs and great tips.

Meg Winkleblack via e-mail

We see a Maxim internship in your future! Please send a head shot, your shoe size, and a DNA sample (it's dorsn't even have to by yours.) Good luck, Meg!

Face the Facts

A young woman and her baby get on abus The bus driver looks at the baby and screams in horror.

The woman, furious, marches to the back of the bus to sit down. As she sits, a man asks, "Are you OK?"

The lady replies "That bus driver just insulted me. I should §6 up there and give him a piece of my mind!"

The man says, "You do that. And I'hlook after your monkey."

Timing Is Everything

Sitting in a car late one night, a young man is reading a magazime and a girl is knitting ascent. Suddenly a cop taps on the window.

"How old are you?" he asks suspiciously.

"Twenty-three," the man answers.

"And how old is she?" inquines the officer.

The man looks at his watch and says, "Well, in about '11 mijoutes she'll be 18."

No Nude Taxes

Awornan visits an accountant to file hertaxes. He asks her, "What's your occupation?"

The woman says, "I'm a hooker."

The accountant balks and says, "Oh, we cam't say that. Let's try to rephrase it."

"OK. How about 'prostitute'?", the woman suggests.

KStHl too crude," the accountant says.

They both think for a minute, and the woman blurts out, "Let's say I'm a chicken farmer!"

"What does a chicken farmer have to do with being a prostitute?" the accountant asks.

The woman answers, "I raised 5,000 cocks lastyear!"

Grass on the Field

An ambitious girls' track team coach starts giving his squad steroids. Their performance soars, and they go on towin the state championship. The day before the nationals, one of his hurdlers comes into his office.

"Excuse me, coach." she says. "I have a problem. HairiSstlartingtlogrow on my chest!"

"Oh, myGod!" yells the coach. "Well, howfar down does it go?"

*Down to my balls," she replies. "That's the other thing I wanted to talk to you about."

Q: What's the hardest thing about eating a vegetable?

A: The wheelchair.

Q: Did you hear about the flasher who was thinking of retiring?

A: He decided to stick it out for one more year.

Nothing Registers

A woman in a supermarket hurries to the express line with a few items.

The clerk has his backitumed to her, so she says loudly, "Excuse me, I'm in a hurry. Could you pleasecheckmeout?"

The clerk turns, looks herup and down, and says, "Nice tits."

Animal Magnetism

Acity boy asks a farmer for his daughter(s hand in marriage.

"Prove you're worthy," says the falmer. "Go screw that cow in the pasture."

KAmything for her." The kid humps the cow and returns. KNowcan we wed?" he asks.

The famier points to a goat, and when the boy's done with the goat, he points to a pig.

Kyou can marry her," the farmer says finally.
"Screw that," replies the city boy. "How much forthe farm?"

Fill 'Er Up

"Here's the problem," Doc tells a first-time dad.
"This baby badly needs a diaper change."

Lookingcomfused, the man replies, "Butthe package says it's good for eight to 10 pounds!"

Fowl Play

We have nothing to fear but fear itself, Also: birds. Here, a rundown of the current feathered threats to the American way of life.

Quack Attack

As we saw on January 1§, a few stupid goddamn geese can bring down a 100-ton commercial jet. But the Miracle on the Hudson wasn't the first down-feathered disaster. High-altitude splats cost U.S. aviators $600 million a year in damages and have resulted in more than 160 injuries and 11 deaths siffice 1990. We say fight these terrorists: Eat foie gras!

One Flu Over the Chickoo Nest

Since 2003 diseased poultry has inffected 399 people with the avian flu virus, killing 252. According to the World Health Organization, there is a "substantial risk" that it will develop into a human-to-human virus that could kill 71 million people and—gasp!—shut down KFC.

Clap On!

Some pet birds provide companionship. Others—particularly parrots, parakeets, macaws, and cockatiels—provide Chlamydia psittacosis, a strain of the clap. There are 50 reported cases a year arld just as many incredulous partriers: "But, honey, I swear, the bird gave it to me!"

Pecking Orders

Random bird attacks have been on the rise. This past June residents in Chicago were warned to beware of batty blackbirds dive-bombing pedestrians. (Oprah, if you are reading this, please write and tell us if Stedman is OK.)

Attention, dukles who can't lift quietly: We're secously contaktering dropping a 45-pound plate on your beet-red head

It's been a while since we pumped iron, 50 it was $0000 what alarming to discover that gym rats are still letting out loud guttural screams on the bench. Don't get us wrong—we plead guilty to singing along with the Kelly Clankson remixes in our weekly hilphop dance class. (Our instructor, Barry, insists on it!) But we expect more from the angrymathbeasts doing 400-pound squats in the freeweights area. It sounds like these vein-popping maniacs are undergoing a particularly sadistic colon exam or "experimenting" with a cayennepepper cock ring. Some may say bench-press battle cries sound totally aggro, but to our ears they're reminiscent of a noise one might make after being abducted by aliens and probed mercilessly with a space fork. So until these guys can learn to keep their pie holes shut while pushing weight, we'll stay pjugged into our iPod, silently mouthing the words to the dlub version of "Since U Been Gone." At least until the ripped guy wearing the weight belt hits the showers.

ASK MAXIM

We uncover the ugly truth behind the world's deadliest dictators, skeleton-snapping strength, radioactive Russia, and the dirty deeds of dolphins!

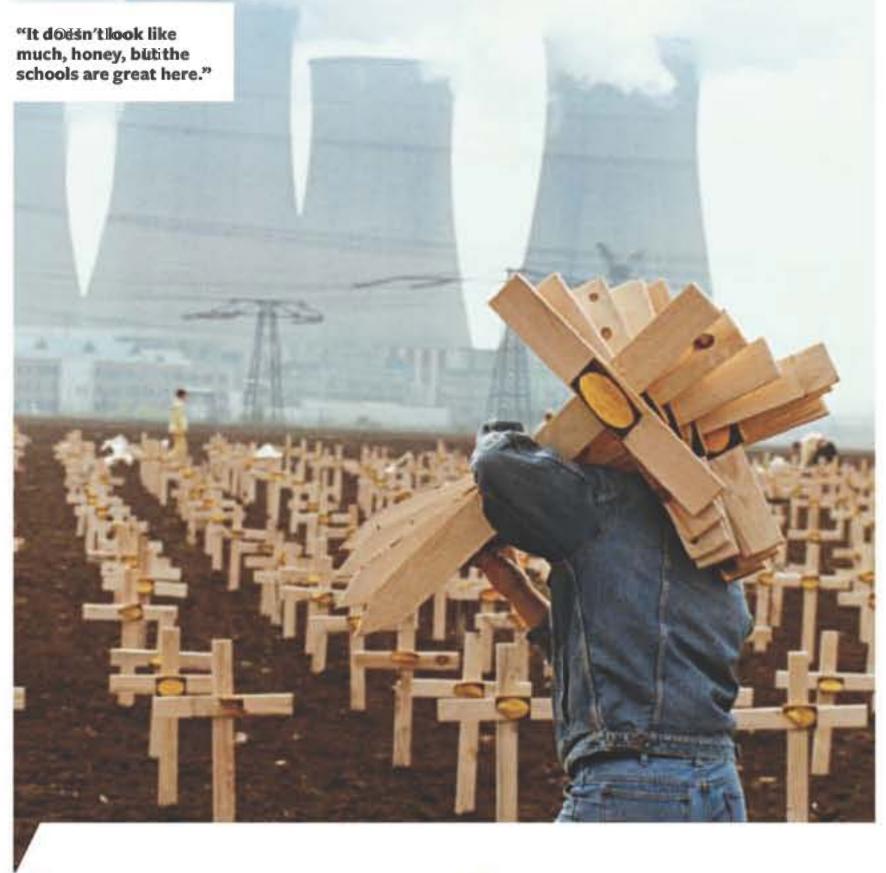

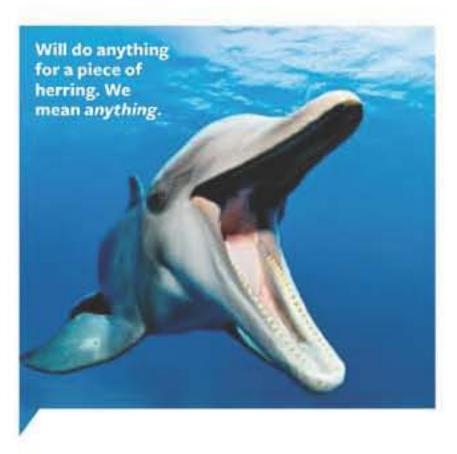

What's the maximum amount of weight a human being can lift before bones start breaking?

Joshua Wein, Tuscaloosa, AL

Awholegoddamn lot! Dr. E. Paul Zehn, autthor of Becoming Batman: The Possibility offa Superhero, states in theory the maximum weight a man can lift is "roughly equal to a person's height in meters squared, multiplied by 120." Therefore, the world's tallest man, who stands &5", would max out at 790 pounds. However, the record is actually more than 1,000 pounds and was set by a guy who stands just over six feet. How? "Nutrition, genetics, and training," Zehr declares. Limiting factors aren't breaking bones but tendons, particularly if you use steroids. Not that you would ever do such atthing. Did we mention how nicely that self-tamner covers up your bacne?

How dangerous is it to be in Chernobyl today?

Franklin Cheevers, Charlotte, NC

Good news, Frank! Texas Tech professor Ron Chesser has studied the radiation therefor a dozen years and finds that "a day-tripper would encounter an average of five to 10 microsieverts per hour," with brief exposure to higher levels, for a total of about 60 microsieverts. The average nonradiation worker absorbs 2.7 microsieverts per day, but that's still negligible for a day trip. Interested in a longer stay? The city surrounding Chernobyl is Pripyat. Chesser notes that staying there for a year might "convey some health risk," but Pripyat has long been abandoned, so you'd be unable to obtain food, water, or human coritact. However, you'd have lots of contact with half-man, half-bear mutants!

Once and for all, which dictator killed the most people?

Scott Rambush, Tempe, AZ

The 20th century saw many good things (the discovery of penicillin, Saved by the Bell: The College Years). It also saw history's three greatest butchers, men so monstrous Adolf Hitler only managed to take the bronze. We'll never know exactly, but Hitler is estimated to have killed as many as 20 million during his 12-year reign. Calculating Joseph Stalin's total is harder, as he still has many defenders in Russia, but Soviet newspapers conceded he caused at least 20 million deaths. But neither can approach Chairman Mao: The still-worshiped Chinese dictator is believed to be responsible for more than 70 million deaths. That said, all three fully deserve their special place in Hell...right next to Screech!

Have dolphins actually saved people from imminent death?

John Dark, St. Louis, MQ

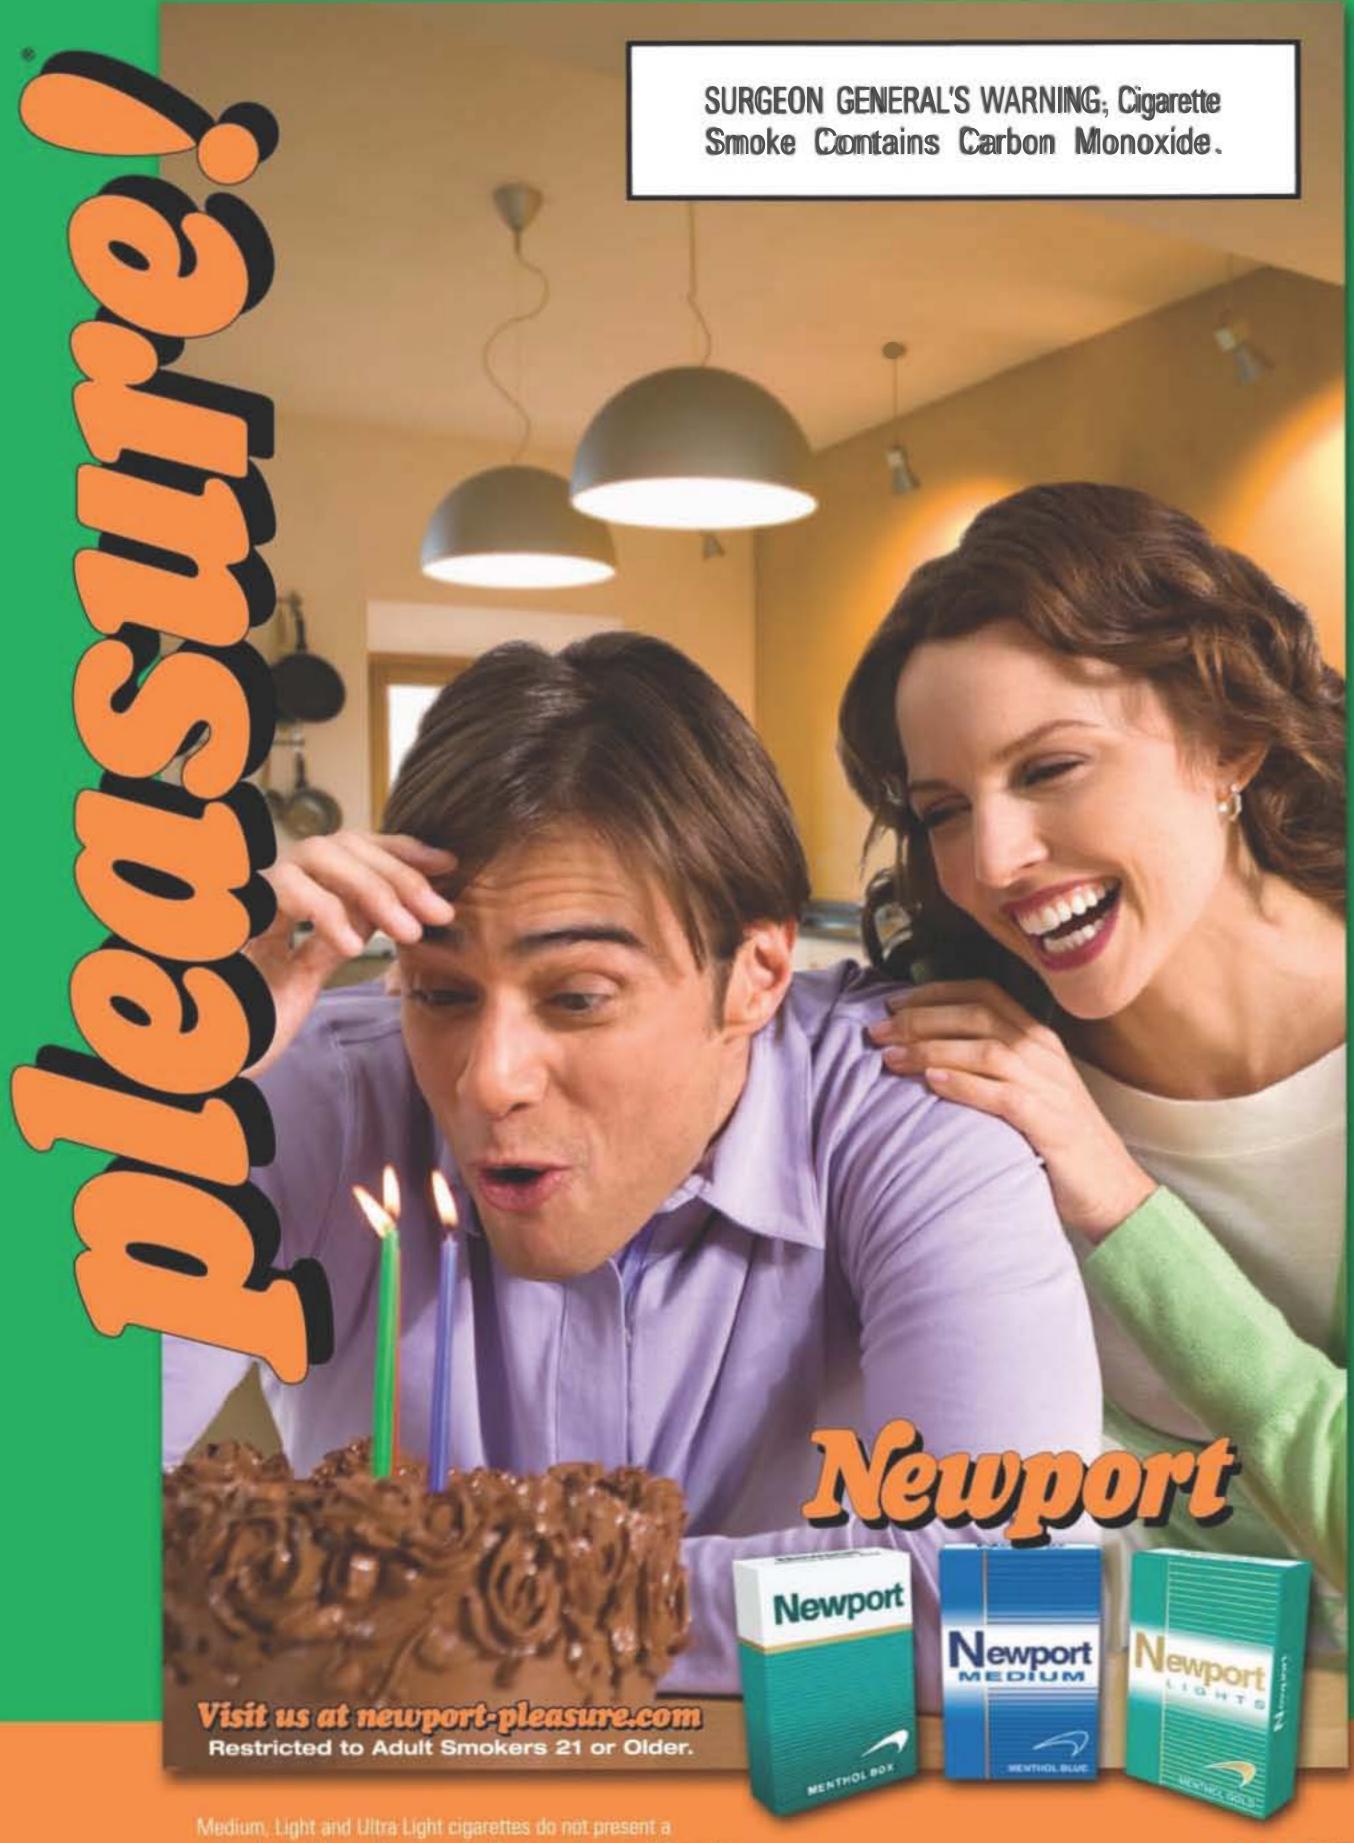

Looks like someone's got a Flipper fetish! "This reputation of bottle-nosed dolphins is something that comes from Hollywood and cultural folklore," insists Trevor Spradlin, a marine mammal biologist with the NOAA Fisheries Service. In fact, there have been multiple cases of the squeaky sea mammals attacking humans. In 1994, off the coast of Brazil, a provoked dolphin rammed a man in the stomach, which led to his severely embarrassing death. "Dolphins are just like any other wild animal. For everyone's protection, it's against federal law to feed or harass dolphins in the wild," warns Spradlin. Guess we'll have to stop dangling interns smothered in tuna oil over "Snuggles" the office porpoise. Sigh.

Jimmy Come Lately

The former SNL-er drops some inside knowledge on his new job, he still-awake-after-midnight masses have been (cautiously) waiting nearly a year for Jimmy Fallon to take over Conan's spot on Lotte Night.

As his time in the spotlight arrives, the giggly goofball reveals five littleknown facts about his latest late-night gig.

It was preordained.

"I was named Most Likely to Replace David Letterman in my eighth grade yearbook. It turns@ut my principal was Nostradamus."

He hates A-listers.

"I don't care about big celebs. My guests are going to range from inventors to sports guys. And I'll treat a video game release just as big as a movie release. Like, if we can get the new Grand/Theft Auto before anyone and let someone from the audience play...I'd walch that."

It will prevent him from making Taxi 2.

"Lorne Michaels gave me the job so I wouldn't make any more movies. That was the deal. He said, 'Stop it already. I've had enough!'"

There's room on the couch for Dubya.

"George W. Bush can be my sidekick He's out of a job, right? He's probably mad I got this job. He's like, "Now what am I gonnado?"

Hosting is harder than Pope-ing.

"If you do the job well, you do it until you die. It's a Pope job. In fact, it may be harder to get on NBC late night than it is to become Pope. There have been only two other Late Night hosts, and, uh, at least 100 popes."—Mike Shear crazy hijinks, writer-director Jødy Hill prefers troubled protagonists. In his cult-favorite debut, The Foot FistlWay, heearned yuks at the expense of a crazed karate instructor.

Sadly, his Bond Villain audition went quite poorly.

Scenes From a Maul

Jody Hill's Observe and Report turns Seth Ragen into a deranged mall cop.

Now he's back with the violent and funny Observationd Report. Think Apatow by way of Tarantino.

Describe Observe and Report.

"The idea is a vision of darkness that's like the commedic Taxi DiMit". I actually took out stuff that seemed too comedik. I wanted everything to be darker and taken totally seriously. My original idea was to cast Seth and then no other comedic actors. Butthen you have Ray Liotta, who... Shit, Ray ain't funny [laughs]."

Are we talking Goodfellas Liotta or Operation Dumbo Drop Liotta?

"Straight-up Goodfillas Ljotta—angry and kicking ass. He's a detective, and there's a turfwar between him and Rogen. Crazy shit goes down in themall."

Is the world ready for such depravity?

"Probably not. Buff hope I'll at least bring some danger back to movie comedy."—Wlatt Barone

Carnie Knowledge

SNL-er Bill Hader breaks down his transformation into a dopey fun-park boss in Adventiliteland.

Trust your director.

"Adventureland is director Greg Mottola's big follow-up to Superbad, plus it's based on his own experiences working at an amusement park when he was a kid, so I had to come correct. But I remembered from being in Superbad that he's a breeze to work with. He'll throw you something, you run with it, and it ends up in the movie. There were so many scenes where, when I first saw Superbad, I was like, 'Whoa, he kept that im'?'

Get Into your character's mustache.

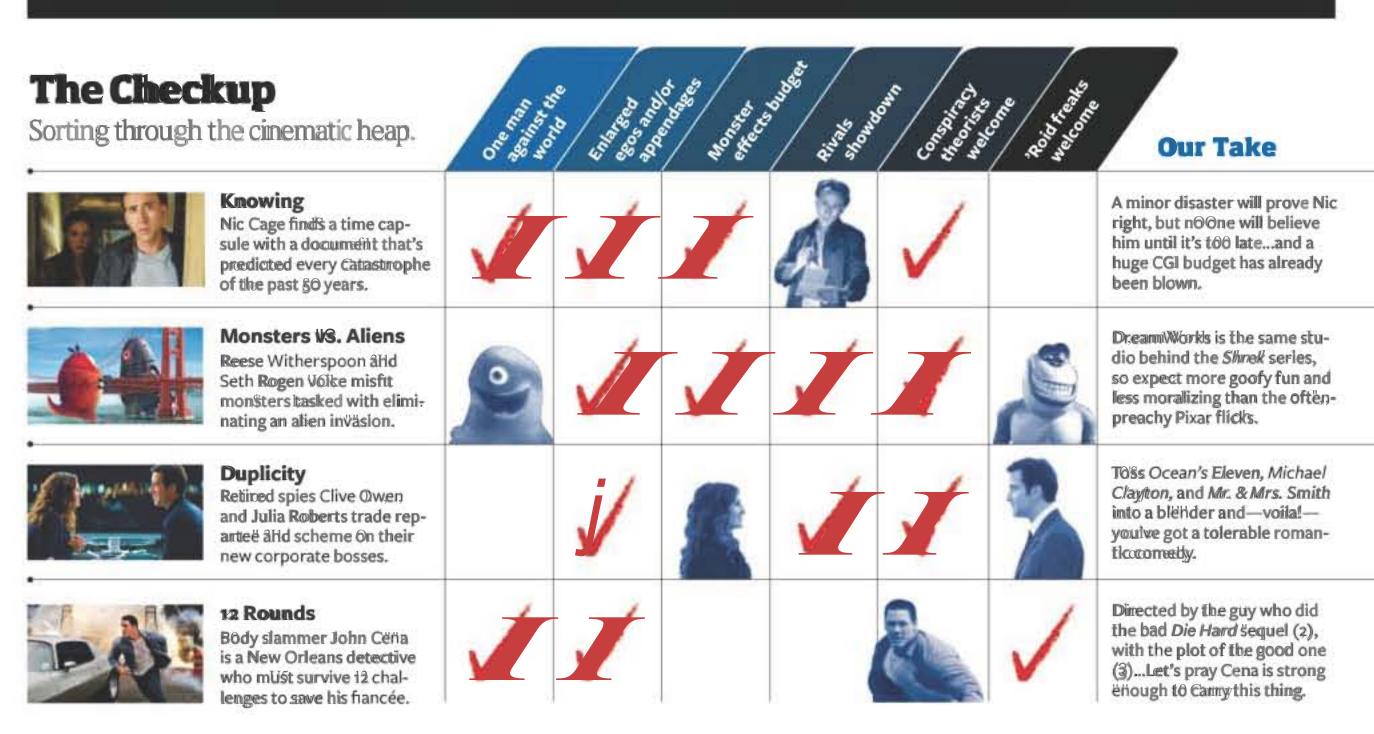

"When you put on the mustache, there's really only 6M direction to go. I play Bobby, who runs Adventureland with his wife, Paulette, played by my SNL cast mate Knisten Wiig. We decided that, in the off-season, they swing. That's just the kind of people they are."

Channel past traumatic experiences.

"I never had a job at an amusement park, but I used to work in a movie theater. One time I told some girls who were being rude to me the end of Titanic. I was like, "Leo dies at the end. Oh, and the old lady has the diamond that they're looking for the whole time. Enjoy the movie!"

My bios's just said, "You're fired."

Adventureland hits theaters March 27.

SO HOW DO YOU WANT TO GO?

Breaking up a robbery in a fast-food restaurant, just like River Phoenix in Standby Me. I think it's more likely I'll fall down and fatally hurt myself running with a fork because my food is ready.

DO YOU HAVE ANY DEATHBED CONFESSIONS?

I'm not going to start giving away secrets just because I'm on my deathbed! No one needs to know I stole the script for Forgetting Sarah Marshall from a dead man's hand at the Kinko's on Westwood Boulevard

YOUR CHARACTER ON HOW I MET YOUR MOTHER IS FASCINATED WITH CRYPTOZOOLOGY. IF YOU WERE REINCARNATED, WHAT MYTHOLOGICAL SPECIES WOULD YOU BECOME?

What a question! I suppose you think you'll be able to find some subconscious meaning in my answer that will reveal some strange personality trait I try to keep hidden. Well, that's ridiculous. Anyway, I would be a unicorn.

IN I LOVE YOU, MAN, YOU PLAY PAUL RUDD'S BEST BUD. ANY PRANKS YOU'VE PLAYED ON HIM THAT SHOULD BE PUNISHABLE BY DEATH?

No, but once I was asleep at lunch, and I woke up to Rudd saying softly, "Jas...wake up." When Iopened myeyes he was standing over me with his balls out. The great thing about Rudd is they look exactly how you imagine they'd look.

RUDD GOES ON A FEW MAN-DATES IN I LOVE YOU. MAN. WITH WHOM WOULD YOU MOST LIKE TO GO ON A MAN-DATE BEFORE YOUR DEMISE?

Dinner and a show with Nathan Lane.

WAS THERE ANYONE ON EARTH YOU WANTED TO PUNCH IN THE FACE?

Yeah. At a test screening for Sarah Marshall, some frat kid raised his hand at the end and asked, "What's up with that guy's weird dick?"

WHAT'S THE WILDEST THING YOU EVER DID WHILE YOU WERE ALIVE?

In the Great War of 2023, I led the freedom brigade to victory over the Legion of Destruction.

GOT ANY LAST WORDS?

In dying whispers to my best friend: "Brian... come here. You have to go to my house, find my laptop, and clear my browsing history."

How I Met Your Mother airs on CBS Mondays at 8:30 P.M., and /Love You, Man hits theaters March 20.

Spencer Grammer

Kelssey's daughter got Dad's talent-and she might even beat him in the looks department.

pencer Grammer has one lasting memory of her first acting gig, as a nine-year-oldextra on Cherrs, It's not the horror of walking in on Ted Damson sans toupee or the elation of meeting Sir John Rahzenberger (he has been knighted, right?), No, for the eldest daughter of Dr. Frasier Crane, it was all about the perks. "They had rially good crafts service," Spencerremembers. "There was this special drawer with tons occandly, and Iloved Almond Joys. That was the excitting part!"

The nepotism of that first plum role aside, Spencer dearly doesn't carry herself like the snooty daughter of IV royalty, Instead, the down-to-earth actress, 25, has forged her own path, most notably as a young doctor on AstM World TILHS (her trick = I just said 'stat' a lot !), and now as golden girl Casey Cartwright on ABC Family's Greek. Appearing on a network big on smiles and sincerity, this version of fraternity life can seem a bit PG-I3-take Casey's wholesome love triangle, which Spencer admits is "more about loweand less about sex and revenge." But as the third season kicks pff, you won't hear Spencer complain about starring on a teen soap that makes GOssip Girlseem like 91/2 Weeks, "I like our network, because I think sometimes shows become a little pornographic," she says. "I hold an acting teacher who said the most interesting sex to watch is the sex you imagine people having, and I'm of the same mind-set."

Fans of an entirely different mind-set can take solace in knowing that Spenaed doesn't have much in common with her frighteningly bublily, 50 Galad-dimbing character, "I consider Casecythe really excited part of myselff: Spencerexplains, "but other times I-m mellow and like to slufand play video games. "Video games, you say? Do go on! "I play lots of Rock Edad!. During the Hollywood writer's shrike, I played so much that I could play guitter and sillg at the same time. If was getting outrageous."—Mikt Osar!

Halo Snores

As the latest Halo hits shelves, we say the storied series needs a rebook, Wars, the fourth installment of the hugely popular interplanetary shoot-'em-up franchise, will no doubt have sold millions of copies. After all, Haw 3 made $300 million in its first week alone. But is game published Microsoft resting on the game's killer rep? Permit us to submit four ways Halo can return to its former awesomeness.

1. Stick to real innovation.

By changing Halo from first-person shooter to strategy game, as Wars does, Microsoft may seem to be moving the franchise in a new, exciting direction. But where previous Halos were innovative, Wars is derivative. Wielding armies with Star Crost-ian weapons using Lord of the Rings; Buitle for Middle Earth-like controls, you search for an artifact that could change the course of the war with the alien Covenant...but can't because this is a prequel to the main, better series. We loved Halo because it was like nothing we'd ever seen before. It's time Microsoft shocked and awed us all over again,

2, Keep the dream team.

As a game development studio, Bungie has cred going back 20 years. They're the original geniuses behind Haw, yet Microsoft sawfit to take Wars out of their hands and give the series to Ensemble Studios, who intend to shut dawn after Wars ships. Mailing it in, anybody?

3. Don't value multiplayer over single player.

From Hold 2 onwards, the series' online (Omponent has been its main selling point. While it's fun blowing up buddies over Xbox Live, having to deal with racisti/homophobic slurs by Ritalin-fueled junior highers blows.

4. Add ninjas, pirates, and zombies.Game hero Mastler Chiefmight need some help. Just sayin'.

The Stealth Speeder

Not all new muscle cars scream for attention. Take the Pontiac GXP—its sheet metal may be subtle, but underneath Jucks a deaply somerous 6.2-liter L§3 V-8 engine ripped from a C6 Corvette. Sound like a blast? Yep, it's the kind of rich, torquey/four-door fun that you could pay 45 grand more for, in the form of a BMW M5. Even though the G8 GXP weighs more than 4,000 pounds, its Nürburgring-tuned suspension makes testing its outer limits a challenge: On our test drive, opening the throttle through turns amplified the musical that thump that thump of road seams, but the GXP never gave of slipped. Built by GM's Australian arm, the G8 comes equipped with a few native quirks, like an exhaustion-preventing "rest reminder" that chirps once you've driven for two hours without a break. Really? The Rally Rocket 2009 Subaru Impreza WRX

A funny thing happened to the WRX: In revising their hot hatch for '09, Subie's engineers turned out a harderedged car with a faster o-60 time (4.7 seconds) than their rally-king STI model (5.1 seconds), a car priced $10K more. Sure, this snub-nosed beastie is fugly, but plunk yourself into the driver's seat and magic happens: Aesthetic concerns get squeegeed from your cerebrum as quickly as you can blow through second gear. Speed gains for '09 come thanks to the addition of the STI's big turbocharger, boosting hp to 265. Paired with a manual tranny, she's a perfect all-wheel drifting machine. Governors Gone Wild!

Fiercely follicled Blago may be gone, but don't worry, gubernatorial bat-shittimess is alive and well. Here, our definitive ranking of America's most peculiar pols.

BOBBY JINDAL, LOUISIANA (RI

est governor, 37, took his name from the youngest me@lberofalk@ted1V family: Bobby Brady. Other fun facts? His staffhas noted that he rarely eats lunch and neverseems to have to urinate. Jindal was a biology major, but supports schools' teaching "intelligent design" (which includes the belief that Noah rode a dinosauronto the Ark), and in 1994 he wrote an essay about a friend's exorcism. He says it not only cast out the demon but also (ured his friend of cancer. Eat if, Beelzebub!

When given the opportunity to rebuke the reverend, Perry replied, "In my faith that's what it says, and I'm a believer of thatt" Another thing Perry believes in? "Calt Scratch Fever:" Perry invited Ted Nugent to perform at an inaugural gala, wherein the Mlotor City Madman took the stage in a Confederate flagT-shirt and shouted colorful remarks about non-English speakers. Was Governor Perry outraged? According to the Nuge, Perry advised him on how to deal with the press: "Jell them todrop dead." Slightly more chaiming was the waly Perry ended a TV interview in 2005. Not reallizing the camera was still on, he signed off, "Adios, mofo."

SARAHPALIN, ALASKA (R)

You lived through 2008, right? Palin inspired enthusiasm, disgust, and, happily, the Hustdenpomo "Who's Natylim' Paylin"?" Since her lost VP bid, her ummarried 18-year-old daughter gave birth to a child named Tripp. (The baby's other grandmid was affected for allegedly dealing OxyContin.) Palin officially launched herpotilitical action committee, which points to herrunning for prez in 2012. (Incidentally, the Some year the Molyan calendar says the world will end.) The undisputed superstabloffthe RNC, she recently threw her beehive behind her fellow nullbag Rick Perry's run for reelection in Texas, writing, "He walks the walk of a true conservative. And he sticks by his guns—and you know how [feel about gums." Then, we're assuming, she wimked!

ARNOLDSCHWARZENEEGER,

CALIFORNIA (R) It's a rare governor indeed whose bare penis comes up in a Google image search. The fomier action Star loved to grab women as much; as barbells, and accusations of groping g came to light in a 2003 los Angeles Times article. The (Jovernatorreplied, "Many of the things in there are not true, because that's not my behavioT ... And then other things may be true, and in case it is, that's why I said I want to apologize if I offended anyone, because that was not my intention." Well, that dears that up! Three years latter he was heard musing on a female Puerto Rican lawmaker and her "very hot" ethnic mix of the black blood!" and "the lattino blood." Hey, at least he doesn't discriminate. Wily back in 1977, he told Oui magazine, "I cam lookat achick who's a little out of shape, and if she turns me on, I won't hesitate to date her. If she's a good fuck, she can weigh 150 pounds, I don't care: "To be fair, Gov, Amie has exceeded all expectations since taking power-granted, those expectations were set by watching him kill Richard Dawson in That Running Mun.

But how about that tan? All the heat he's taken for things like going on pricey taxpayer-funded vacations and collecting campaign contributions from illegal aliens maintains his glorious pudding-skin sheen year-round.

JIMGIBBONS, NEVADA (R)

In a five-week span in 2007, the nimble-fingered Gibbons sent 867 text messages to his wife. Whoops, we mean someOrletelse's wife. The wife of a Reno podiatristi, betually. No stranger to tainted love, the now-diiworced gov. was earlier accused of sexually assaulting Chrissy Mazzeo, a 32-year-old cocktail waitress, in a parking garage in 2006. When the DA declared there was insufficient evidence, Gibbons determined, "I lealmed an important lesson: Never offer a helping hand to anybody ever again." Just the words you'd hope for from someone dedicated to serving the public! Visitors to the state calpitol would be likely to find the governor...not there. This past August Gibbons was in his office a total of five days. Remarked Gibbons, "I never knew this job had a time frame on it that requires me to be sitting behind a desk at a certain hour." He has a point. Does it say anywhere In the governor's hand-book that you actually have to go towork?

DAVID PATERSON, NEW YORK (D)

After stepping in for rear-entry aficionado Eliot Spitzer, Paterson beat the muckrakers to the punch, dishing about every embarrassing thing he had ever done-all on his first day on the job. Cocaine abuse? Check. Extramarital affairs too numerous to recall in a sleazy Days Inn? Goteha covered. Auto-fellatio attempt while riding a merry-go-round? Wouldn't have surprised us. The legally blind, pamie-attrack-prone gov. inspired one of the few funny skits on SNL, then had to get all victimy and complain that the skit was offensive to people with disabilities, Hey, SML, it isn't nice to thrash people on the national stage. Well, unless their name is Caroline Kennedy, that is.

Capital Kook Hall of Fame

Sexual Kryptonite

Every girl has a hidden weakness. It's your job to exploit it.

let's call him Clark—for a few months when he showed up to dinner wearing glasses instead of his usual contacts. He explained apologetically that one of his lenses had fallen down the drain. But Clark had no idea that his mishap was actually agift in disguise. Hewasabout to find out, after I mounted him in the restaurant bathroom, that his glasses were my sex kryptonite: When I see a guy in specs, I immediately want to fog up his lenses via some trazy monkey sex.

Liketheglowing green rock that transforms Superman into a superwuss, sex kryptonite is a hidden force that destroys a woman's sexual control. These secret vulnerabilities come in many forms—some common, like my glasses fetish, and others bizarre, as in the case of a friend who gets hot at the sight of pointy snaggleteeth. "Guys always want to talk about how much money they make or how often they work out," she says. *But it isn't the size of their pees or wallets that'll get me into bed; it's how closely they resemble a vampire. What can I say? I think fangs are fucking that."

Chances are, you possess at least one unusual trait that will drive a woman wild. But this weapon is useless if you don't know how toidentifyitandtakeadvantage. So, using sto-

The sand insight from several female victims, I've identified the most common types of sex kryptonite. Read on to find out which category you belong to, and you'll be on your way to becoming the Lex Luthor of her bedroom.

TheGeeks

Men grow up conditioned to believe they have to be jocksorpretty boys to get laid. But women have understood for years that it's nerds who really rule the world (see: Bill Galtes, Mark Zuckerberg, Barack Obama). Geeks are the rock stars of the modern age, which is why many things that Signal dorkiness in a guywill trigger horniness in a girl. Stacy, 29, a celebrity assistant, is a sucker for her boyfriend's collection of Londof the Rings figures. "If he were 15, he'd get the shit knocked out of him for having Hobbit dolls," she says, "Rut I find it weirdly sexy that he's so enthusiastic about something other than chicks or sports. Makes me Want to Bilbo Baghim until his sheets are soaked."

Often you don't even need a prop to get a geek-lowing girl's libido rewed; a bold display of brainpower is enough to do thetnick. "Myex-boyfriend would shout out Jtoparthyansswerss-and get every single one of them right;" $aly$ Charlotte, a 22-year-old barista. "I'd get so tumed on that by the time Final Jeopardyrolled around, I'd be on my knees giving him head."

According to sex and relationship expert Logan Levkoff, Ph.D., geekworship is long overdue: "The era of the 'bad boy' is over. Remember that guy playing Dungeons & Dungons in high school? Now women know he'd service them in ways a bad boy would never bother to." So break out that Mensa certificate and get a framed periodic table of elements on your wall—nerdiness could very well earn you some sexual extra credit.

The Freaks

If you'veallways felt self-conscious about being the skinniest or the hairiest or the freckliest, surprise, Quasimodo!! Your physical weirdness has likely been driving some women crazy for years. "I love a guy with a big schnoz," says 33-year-old Trimal, a jewelry designer. "I'm not sure why, but all my ex-boyfriends had huge ones. Whenever I see a guy with a prominent nose, all I can think about is sitting on his face."

Truth be to Jd, not all women prefer the diched ideal of "tall, dark, and handsome." Instead, we want someone who stands out. "My ultimate weakness is weird scars," Salys Jenny, 27, a paralegal. "One time I hooked up with a guy who hold a huge one across his face. Refore he even finished telling me that it was from a shark attack, I had one hand down his pants and my tongue in his mouth. There's just something completely bad;ass and fuckable about a man who's suffered major injuries."

As with attraction to dweebs, this sexual superforwer is; all about bucking convention, "Amything that goes against what we've been told to like is arousing because it seems forbidden," says leakhoff. Natasha, a 35-year-old marketing executive, discovered as much after dating a man she towered over with her 5'9' frame: "Hewasonly $'2", and all my friends were baffled as towhy I was sleeping with him. But he put more effort into sex, probably to compensate for his stature. He was crazily into oral—like an Wompa-Loompa on a sugar rush. I've lusted after shorties since."

The Dirtbags

For many girls, cleanliness is not next to sexgodliness. Skip a shower or two and you may find women answering your call of the wild. "Call me crazy, but Igo nuts for guys with that homeless-chic look-you know, kind of bearded and disheveled," says Triida, 20,;a student. "My boyfriend came back from camping recently smelling like squirrels had been nesting in his amipits. He was heading straight for the shower, but I pulled him into bed before he got the chance." Chrissie; a 19-year-old nanny, also flips for an unkempt man. "My college boyfriend went backpacking through Europe and didn't shave for nine weeks," she says. "He looked pretty much like the Unabomber at that point, and I never wanted to bone him more."

Now, this doesn't mean women across America are pleasuring themselves to thoughts of the bums on the Lower Fast Side. However, a smidgen less attention to grooming can signal that you're laid-back albout your appearance. "I love seeing dirt under a guy's nails," says Catherine, 27, an editor. "To some girls it says, 'I'm gross.' But to me it says, 'I'm not prissy. And, yes, I will throw you upagains a wall and fuck you—hard.' Have I said too much?"

The Gender Benders

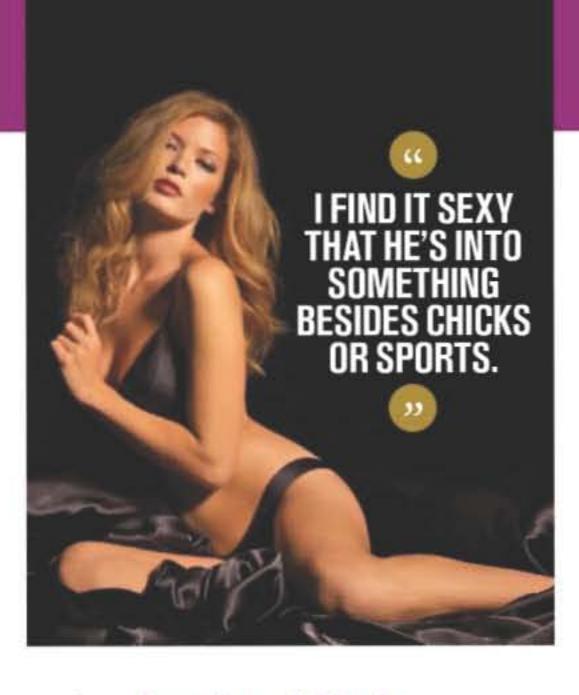

Do you rescue stray cats oremjoy making pottery while listening to "Unchained Melody"? Don't worry that she won't find you manlyemough. Sometimes acting like; a vagina is the ticket to seeing ours. "I was watching Interventible with a guy friend and saw a single tear roll down his cheek," recalls Shannon, a 27-year-old designer. "Affter a mental 'aww,' I straddled him on the couch, he pulled my skirt up, and we started fucking right there."

Bottom line: Some women just get tired of male posturing. Jenny, a 29-year-old stylist, was finally convinced to go out with a guy after he made a superwussy romantic gesture. "He'd asked me out a bunch of times, and [kept saying no," she says. "Then he called and played the opening theme from Titwiic on my voice mail. At the end he said, 'My heart will not go on until you go out with me.' I thought, It takes serious balls to be that much of a pussy!"

The Wild Cards

There are some forms of sex kryptonite that simply can't be classified-old/dballlibido; activators that no one would ever expect. "I'm obsessed with men who chew gum," says Aimsley, 27, a student. "Hearing the sound but also seeing his jaw muscles flex gets me all riled up." And thetnigger for Annie, a 27-year-old curator, is...bad handwritting? "If I see a guy jot something in chicken scratch, I start panting," she says. "It makesmet himklah's sreally ssmart—like his brain works too fast for his pen. I want to distract his frenzied thinking with a blow job." The point is, what you thinkwomen find sexy isn't always the case. Why else would chicks dig Pete Wentz?

Becoming an Evil Genius

It's often difficult to discern why a woman decides to sleep with you. (Was it your argyle sweater? Your third nipple?) But the best way to find her hidden weakness is observation. "If you pay attention, you can take dues from your experiences with a woman," says Levkoff. In other words, open your eyes. If she constantly plays with your arm hair, for example, your furrimess could be hererotic Achilles' heel.

Once you've identified her sex kryptonite, use it on her. But beware: If you abuse the power, she'll become immune, Emm;a, a 23-year-old writer, experienced this burnout firsthand. "I went out with a guy in a Goth band," she says. "When I saw him onstage with a full face of makeup, it drove me crazy. We fucked backstage, and Iloved seeing him sweat off his eyeliner as we went at it." But after she told him about it, he started wearing makeup all the time. "He'd show up for dinner looking like a kabuki performer," she says. "It wasænbbairalssing. I had to break up with him." The lesson? With great power comes great responsibility. Wait, no. May the force be with you. Nope, that's not it, either. Just...don't screw it up.

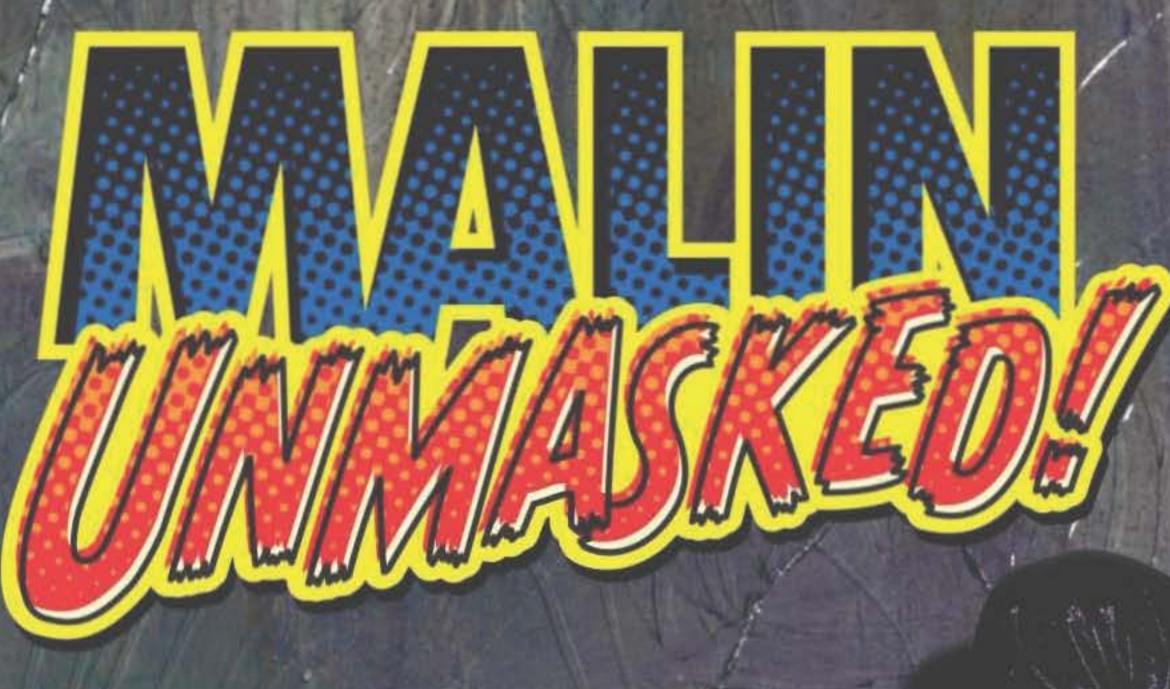

ARE YOU A SEXUAL SUPERMILLAIN?

You may unwittingly possess qualities women find strangely attractive. This formula will calculate how secretly sexyyou are.

SCORE

1-19: You're reasonably attractive and sort of cool. Yet you've never been laid! 20-39: You are freakishly smart, probably physically deformed, and kind of a wimp. Chicks dig you! 40+: You are Datriel Craig. We loved your work in Casino Royale.

WATCHMEN'S SUPERHOT SUPERHERO
MALIN AKERMAN CLEANS UP CRIME AND DIRTIES UP OUR THOUGHTS. ZAM! POW!

BY DAN BOVA PHOTOGRAPHS BY WARWICK SAINT

t was almost the blockbuster that wasn't. Rival film companies sent their slimiest lawyers into battle for ownership, but when the dust settled, an agreement was met allowing the seminal graphic novel Watchmen to hit the big screen this month. For the uninitiated, Watchmen is an ultra-flark imagining of a world where a team of pariah superheroes find themselves being knocked off one by one at the hands of. Well, that's what they're trying to find out. Comic book nerds are still giving their inhabers a serious workout since learning that the tight-fitting costume of crime-flighting cutie Silk Spectre II is being filled by superhot supergal Malin Akeman, the most impossibly beautiful thing to come out of Sweden since the IKEA Markör coffee table in our living room. Malin grabbed our attention in 2004's Harold & Kumar Go to White Castle and hasn't let go since, with roles in the likes of Entout lige and The Heartbreak Kid. Listen in as she discusses human condoms, hersecret criminal past, and peeing on Ben Stiller.

FOR THOSE WHO HAVEN'T READ WATCHMEN, PLEASE EXPLAIN IT, AND SPEAK AS IFYOU'RE TALKING TO ALEARNING-DISABLED CHIMP,

A chimp? Is that because this is for a magazine read by men? The thing with Watchmen is I'm nevergoing to do it justice by trying to explain it in a nutshell. It's set in 1985 in an alternate worldwhere Nixon is still president and superheroes have been banned by the government. I play Silk Spectre II, one of the Wattchmen. One of us gets killed, and we're trying to figure out why. It's cool because only one of the Watchmen has special powers; the rest of us are just great fighters. It appeals toeweryone, whether you're male, female, chimpanzee, or dwarf.

YOU ENGAGE INSOMESERIOUS ASS-KICKING IN THIS MOVIE. HOW/WASTRAINING FORTHAT?

The beginning was super frustrating, because I've danced my whole life, so I've learned how to do things gracefully. When you try to fight and look tough and you're a ballerina, you wind up looking like a spastik animal. Ilooked sostupid, but once we got going I got the hang of it. I remember one Saturday night I decided instead of taking a cab, I was going towalk home in my high heels and have acigarette. I found myself hoping someone would come up and throwme a right hook. Idon't know what Iwas thinking...Unlessit'schoreographed, Icam'tdo shit! But I felt tough forthat moment.

DEADLY WEAPONS NOW? Not yet, but they certainly could be.

WHAT DID YOU THIN KTHE FIRST HIM EMBEY SHOWED YOU YOUR COSTUME?

Ithought it was really fucking hot. Then I tried it on, and I thought it was really fucking uncomfortable. And the smell? When you take it off, it's like a human condom.

Yes, Igrabbed my dog and peed on him.

ANYTHING YOU'D LIKE TO SAY TO THE CRAZED FANS ABOUT TO SWARMYOU?

Illowe these fans. They're so passionate, and you don't want to disappoint them. But I'm not really Silk Spectre II, and I can't do anything as far as kicking somebody's ass for you. Just say hello. And don't grab my butt.

2009 Baseballs PREVIEW

Ah, baseball. The crack of the bat, the smell of hot dogs, the rush of Primobolan. With our heroes flailing, underdogs winning, and Manny being Manny, has the game ever been more full of surprises? The national pastime is far from dead. Last year saw the cursed Phillies beat the worst-to-first Rays. The A.L. MVP was a 5'8" runt. A kid earning peanuts won the N.L. Cy Young. It's official: Baseball is no longer a snore. So sit back, adjust your jock, and dig into our guide to the season ahead. It's gonna be awesome.

WHY BASEBALL WON'T SUCK IN 2009

Twenty things we're looking forward to this season.

HATING THE REDSTOXIHAS NEVER BEEN SO MUCH FUN

Against all odds, the past few years have see'fl the Red Sox finally beat out the Yankis not only in the standings but as baseball's most loath some team. And they're only getting worse. If OWner John Henny's whining wasn't bad enough, in the past year Theo Epstein and Co. pulled in a raft of Curt Schilling look-alikes, slamming the door On the era when talented, mercurial nonwhite stars carried the Sox and bewildered the Fenway faithful. Subtract Manuel Aristides Ramirez, add John Smolt2, Brad Penny, Mark Kotlsay, and Rocco Baldelli, and what do you get? A terrifying caricature of lily-white Boston. The palteloess is blinding!

AWESOMELY

Now that Jason Giambi is returning to Oakland, he can go back to being the scruffy bastard we know and love (Minus the PEOs, Of Course.) But If the Giambino wants to once again boast baseball's worst 'do, he hasto contend with Manny Raminez' nappy dreads, 3 Vladimir Guerrero's weird minidreads, and 4 Hideki Matsui's bowl cut.

LANDMARK ACHIEVEMENTS

Randy Johnson: He's big, he's ugly, and he has 295 career wins, meaning the Big Unit could be the last hudeento notch 300 wins (a feat he should accomplish Thursday, June 4 against the Washington Nationals.) Other milestones we're boldly predicting:

Milestone: Gary Sheffield's 500th home run. Game: Wednesday, April 8 at Toronto. Milestone: Mariano Riwera's sooth save. Game: Sunday, July 5 vs. Toronto.

Milestone: The Mets collapse on the doorstep of the playoffs for the third straight time, passing New York's Jets as the most heartbreaking franchise in pro sports. Game: Friday, September 28 at Washington.

COLEHAMELS

IN 200B YOU WERE THE NLCS AND WORLD SERIES MVP, WON 18 GAMES, PICKED UP THE PHILLIES FIRST CHAMPIONSHIP IN DECADES, AND YOU'RE MARRIED TO SURWYOORIGOTHE HEIOI STROBEL. SO, CONGRATULATIONS!

It was an amazing year for our team. It doesn't get better than winning the World Series.

WEINEANT CONGRATULATIONS ON BEING MARRIED TO HEIDL

Yeah, before I met her, I was a Derek Jeter kind of guy. But you start to think, Is this girl here for me or my money or fame? Ilike being married better. Jeter's among the one percent of ballplayers who can pull off what he does. He's phenomenal on and off the field.

YOU CALLED THEMETS CHOKE ARTISTS ON THEIR FLAGSHIP RAOIO STATION. WERE YOU GOADED INTO SAYINGIT?

) didn't know it was a New York station. That was Major League Baseball's fault for doing that.

HOW INSANE WAS BUD SELIG TO ALLOWYOUTO PITCH GAME FIVEOFTHEWORLO SERIES IN AMOR'EASTER?

By the fifth inning, it was absolutely ridiculous. By the sixth inning, it was unplayable.

DO YOU EVER WORRY YOU'L'IL NEVER SIGN AMIEGA-CONTRACT? FORMER PHILM/EDARREN DAULTON SAYS THE END OF THE WORLD IS SLATED FOR 2012?

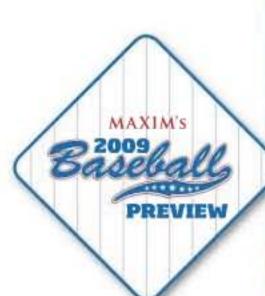

It'll be interesting to see what he'll say after 2012. Iknow the world will not end in 2012. You can bet on that.

THE SECOND COMING OF THE SECOND BASEMAN

For decades major-league second basemen have been little more than falled shortstops with anemic power, unitspairing batting laverages, and moderate speed. This season, however, a new breed of 28%, iPptiomized bythee Phils' Chase Utley (198). is redefining the position. Let yet! he had had 33 homers, 194 RBI slugged .535, and according to ESPN Baseball Tought analyst and former Mets GM Steve Phillips the bas a chance P. PRES.Ret That 2 Charles second basemannewer." THE NATIONAL PASTIME, ANYTIME

John Kruk had better put doon that turkey leg and start redicarsing, because Base NW Tonight has some competition. Coming to so million homes in its inaugural season, the MLB Network's MLB Tonight could be a game changer. Every Monday to Saturday from 6 P.M. will be able to malimline highlights, recaps, hos lool≪inss.and analysis from an army of retired pros. One of them, former-cilose omársiac Mitch Williams, hassa promise for the fans who tune it: "I'm going to be brutally honest," he says. "Intelligent fans don't want an analyst to sugarcoat things." But how Will the Wild Thing keep his concentration in a studio with Middiculous 62 HD screens and a 25 foot Out-of-town scoreboard that updates in real time? Apparently, that won't be a problem:"I don't ever eonce'ntrate anyway!"

Who knew India had such a game show fetish? Hot on the heels of the Oscarwinning Slumdog, the Pittsburgh Pirates signed Rink\ Singh and Dinesh Patel, two Indian javelin throwers who had won a "Million Dollar Arm" contest. THE RISE OF THE FAT MAN

Through the '90s, stars like John Knok and Md Vaughn were large and in charge. But when thelynetired, we were left with rosters full of annoyingly trimmed-down, muscled-up ballers. This $6500ff, however, three of the best players in the bigs will be three of the bigs' biggest players. How do these heavyweights compare?

YOU TOOK THE MOUNDIN THE LAST GAME AT THE OLD YANKEE STADIUM! DID YOU NAB ANY SOUVENIRS?

Yeah, I've got a bag of dirt! I like tually threw the last strike out at the old stadium, and the clubhouse attendants left a little bag of dirt behind in my locker. It's back home in Nebraska. I hope my sister is taking care of it. She better be!

PITCHERS ARE NOTORIOUSLY SUPERSTITIOUS. DO YOU HAVE ANY WEIRD HABITS ON GAME DAY?

I have a wery particular routine. I always get dressed fight to left. In forget to put my right shoe on first, I'll have to do it all over again. I call my dad at the exact same time before the game starts. I listen to the same Eminem track from the 8 Milesound Track. And I press stop exactly two minutes into the song, every time. THE WIZARDRY OF OZZIE

Ozzie Guillen's success as a manager is indisputable. The White Sox skipper has bed his team to five postseason appearances since taking over in 2004, including a World Series title in 20005. His sanity, however, is questionable—which makes him addictively entertaining. Theoutspoken Venezuelan is an unrepentant gaffe machine; In 2005 he introduced a friend as a child molester. In 2006 he Caliled a Chicago Sun-Times columnist a "fag." In 2007, asked to Speculate about a 20 year reunion of his world champion squad, he replied, "We're all crippled and fucked up, pushing wheelchairs, kids crying because their dad was on the ball club-Ifuck that!" And last year he was reprimanded for keeping two naked inflatable dolls in the clubhouse, one with a sign that read, YOU'VE GOT TO PUSH! We're not even sure what that's supposed to mean, but it still made us want to take a shower.

GRABBING BALLS

Considering whatta day at the ballpark can cost, there's something to be said for a free souvenir. Just ask Zack Hample, who has shagged a shocking 3,820 balls. "When I catch 6hë, Ifeel like I'm holdingan object with major-league DNA on it." Eww. Here, Hample's top tips for shagging balls. Scout the pitchers: "If it's a lefty, the other manäßer will pack his lineup with righties. Most home runs are pulled, so it'll go to left field."

Hit bootling practice:

"There are fewer fans, and security isn't as strict. A lot of balls fall into the seats, and a lot of players toss balls into the crowd," Bring disguises: "Visiting teams love to reward their fans, so Wear the opponent's gear. Just prepare to be heakled."

ASTERISK WATCH

Now that A-Rod's confessed to using PEDs, the number of guaranteed Hall of Famers who aren't so guaranteed anymore comes to five. Who'lliget in, and who'll be shut out? Barry Bonds: He's considered by many to be the best ever to play. But if Bomds is convicted of perjury, votlers will want his giant head on a platter. Year of election: Never.

Roger Clement: The Rocket's won more Cy Youngs than anyone else, but (like Bonds) he's kind offa dick and maybe a liar. $tol, voters might belkind for fear that he'll whippa broken bat at their heads. Year of election: 2028.

Mantk McGwire: His 70 HR 1998 season captured our attention. But so did his evasive Congressional testimony in 2005: "I'm not here to talk about the past." La-a-a-a-me. Year of election: 2022, by Veterans' Committee, Sammy Sosa: His 609 career homers are sixth all-time. That he did it in the ateroids era has made Sosa suspect. Still, there's no hard evidence against him.

Year Of election: 20,18. Alex Rodriguez: He's on track to break the home run record-ecleanly so we thought. Silly us! Still a first-balloterthough. Year of election: First Year of eligibility.

LAST YEAR YOU BECAME SOMETHING OF ACELEBRITY FOR ACCURATELY PREDICTING THE RAYSWOULD WIN 31 MORE GAMES THAN IN '07 AND CALLINGTHE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION DOWNTO 11/10TH OF A PERCENTAGE POINT. HOW DOES PREDICTING POLITICS COMPARE WITH BASEBALL?

In politics people build whole reputations off of getting one thing right. In baseball we forecast 1,800plkyensevery year between the major and minor leagues. It's much easier to correct and test.

WHY DO OLD-SCHOOL BASEBALL GUYS SEEM TO RESENT THE ADVANCEO STATISTICAL APPROACH?

Don't get me wrong, baseball is a poetic sport that creates wonderful narratives, but there's also a lot of bullshit about "chemistry" and "clutch" hitting. People still don't appreciate how ephemeral success is. Something goes wrong with a guy's swing or he gets divorced or finds Jesus.

FORPEOPLE UNFAMILIAR WITH LDOGYS (LETTY ON E-OUT GUYS) ORVORP (VALUE OVER REPLACEMENT PLAYER), WHAT ARE THE MOST TELLING STATUSTICS?

For batters it's really the big three: batting, on-base, and slugging. For pitchers it's basically strikeout rate, walkrate, and ground ball to fly ball ratio. With small ball parks today and the number of hitters who have home run power, being able to induce ground-outs is a big deal.

SO DO TEAMS LIKE THE ROYALS OR PIRATES HAVE ANY HOPE OF DUPLICATING THE RAYS' WORST-TO-FIRST REVERSAL?

Until last year Tampa wasn"t even fielding a coherent lineup. They had guys who were playing out of position, no bullpen at all, no fourth or fifth starter. They were targeting 2009, but had so much talent coming out of the seams that they were a year ahead of schedule. They actually had a plan.

ANY PREDICTION FORTHIS SEASON?

As far as players go, Matt Wieters, the Orioles' rookie (at(hem stands out. He could be one of the best players in the game this year. In terms of teams, the ones where everything went wrong last year, like the Tigers and the Indians, they're likely to bounce back. But the Yamkees are my favorite to win the World Series.

The Real World: San Diego, she didn't parlay her fame into a career of tearful confessions on a bunch of other reality TV shows. Instead, the blindingly hot college grad got serious, landingroles in ER, a Disney Movie of the Week, and the ABC Family mimiseries Samurai Girl. Now her martial arts skills, and insane bod, can be seen on the big screen, where she plays karate mistress Chi Chi in Dragonbull; Evolution, a liveaction adaptation of the comic books and cartoons about a quest for magical orbs. A fitting role for a gal who grabs life by the, well, orbs.

WHO ISYOUR DRASONBALL CHARACTER, CHI CHI?

Inthecartoonshe's always chasing after Goku, the leading man. She flirts with him, but he's always running away. It's similar in the movie, but not as kiddish. She definitely kicks butt. I'm not saying this just because I'm biased, but she's the toughest chick in the movie.

DO YOU LIKE BEING THETOUGH GIRL?

It's a fun rolletoplay. The cool thing about her is how the choreographer decided my character was going to fight. They made Chi Chi fight like a dude, with strong kicks and hard punches.

DOES ALL THESTUNT WORK WEAR YOU OUT?

Ilove any physical challenge. Plus, Ilove working with the stunt guys. I have to $4y, the stunt men are always the coolest ones on set. Those are the guys Iusually hang out with.

YOU JUST FINISHED SHOOTING THE REMAKE OF THE '80S SLASHER FLICK THE HOUSE ON SOROR-ITY ROW WITH CARRIE FISHER AND A CAST OF, LIKE, AMILLION WOMEN. WAS THAT TROUBLE?

When I took the job, Iwas netwous because I was working with a bunch of girls who already had their names out there. Like Rumer Willis, the daughter of two hugely famous people. I expected the worst, but what came out of it were real friendships. It was the best three months of my life... other than Dragonball, of course.

D1D CARRIE FISHER GIVE YOU ANY ADVICE?

Well, she did tell us at the gym, "Enjoy that body now, ladies, because it doesn't last."

HAN OR LUKE?

Skywalker. He's hot.

AREYOU STLLINGTORINKING?

I'll have the occasional glass of wine, but I'm not in college anymore. Been there, done that.

WITHYOUR REALITYTY EACHGROUND, WILL YOU BE MORE TOLERANT OF PEOPLE POKING INTO YOUR PERSONAL LIFE THAN OTHER ACTORS?

Iwouldhave to say so.

WELL, SINCE YOU'RE COOL WITH US POKING AROUND, DO YOU HAVE ABOYFRIEND?

No, Idon't. I'm currently single. Imean, a boy-friend? What's that? It's been so long.

Currently giving moviegoers a one-two punch with The International and Duplicity, the thinking man's tough guy sounds off on Jude's tears, Spike's balls, and pesky Bond rumons,

BY PATRICK CARONE

WE HAVE TO ASK: HOW GOOD DID IT FEEL TO MAKEJUDE LAW CRY LIKE ABABY IN CLOSER?

[Laughs_]You have to remember, I played Jude's characteronstage. Itook that who oping every night for months, so I knewwhat it felt like.

YOU ALSO SHARED SOME INTENSE SCENES WITH JULIA ROBERTS IN THAT ONE, HOW WAS ITREUNITING WITH HER IN DUPLICITY?

Working with Julia again was a serious treat. We had a good thing going from before, and we have a similar, odd sense of humor.

WHO DO YOU GUYS PLAY?

We're corporate spies who decide to pull off a scam together, but since our characters know each other so well, they each think the other is trying to pull something. Oh, they're also lovers who are crazy about each other.

YOUROTHER NEW MOVIE, THE INTERNATIONAL, IS ABOUT AGREEDY BANK PRETITY/TIMELY...

It was relevant when wewere making it, but it's become ridiculously more so. Suddenly people are wondering what banks do with all their money, and that's what the film is about.

YOU'VE ACTEO WITH SOM EINCREOIBLY BEAU-THUL WOMEN. NATAUE PORTMAN, JENNIFER ANISTON, MONICA BELLUCCI, JESSICA ALEAL.

Yeah, what can I say? It's, like, a seriously good part of this job.

MOST AMERICAN GUYS FIRSTSAW YOU IN SIN CITY. WAS SHOOTING THAT ACRAZY TIME?

To be honest, I had no idea I was in that movie until Isawit. Ididtwoweeks in an empty studio in Texas with [director] Robert Rodriguez saying, "This is going to be here, and that's going tobe there."Then I sawit and was blown away. I couldn't believe Iwas actually in the thing.

IS THEREGOING TO BEASINCITY2?

No idea. People have been talking about it since the first one came out, but I know nothing.

HOW HARD WAS ITTD DO THOSE SUPER-LONG TAKES INCHILDREN OF MEN?

We didn't get many goes at them, because the resets would literally take half to three quarters of a day. And the sequence at the camp at the end?If] blew atake, I'd have to go home and just try again the next day. Wewerevery ambitious.

IT WAS WIDELY REPORTED YOU WERE UP FOR THE ROLE OF JAMES BOND. IT SEEMS THAT ANY DECENT-LOOKING GUY WITH A BRITISH ACCENT CAN BE RUMORED FORTHAT ROLE.

That's exactly what it was, just rumor.

DO YOU LIKE DANIEL CRAIG'STAKE?

I do, yeah. It was a very smart choice, because he's not an obvious, posingactor. He's come up with a whole new Bond for our time.

THAT CAMEO YOU DID ON EXTRAS, WHERE YOU PLAYYOURSHIFTASSATOTTAIPRICK, WAS HILARIOUS. HOW DID THAT COME ABOUT?

Ricky GetVais rang me up-I'm a crazy fan of his-and asked me to do it. He pitched me the scene on the phone, and I was like, "Tm in."

EVER HAVE AHANKERING TO DO MORE COMEDY?

I would do more comedies, but, amazingly enough, I don't get sent them that much.

YOU GOTYOUR START ONSTAGE IN OLIVER! ARE THERE MORE MUSICALS IN YOUR FUTURE?

No. Clive Owen is definitely not a singer.

YOU HAD ALONG CAREERIN BRITAIN, WITH SUCCESSFULMOVIES ANDTV SHOWS AND PLAYS, BEFORE MAKING YOUR MARK IN THE US. WHAT'S THE BIGGEST DIFFERENCE BETWEEN WORKING IN HOLLYWOOD AND ENGLAND?

Money! If you don't make an impact in America, it's very hard to have a film career.

WHEN YOU'RE WORKING IN THE U.S., IS THERE ANYTHING YOU MISS?

The only thing that is truly important to me is making sure I'get to watch the football games in my trailer. It's important.

WOMEN THINK YOU'RE PREITY MUCH THESEXI-EST GUY AROUND, ANY ADVICE FOR US MORTALS ON CAPTURING THAT CLIVE OWEN MAGIC?

I have no advice whatsoever.

"Working with beautiful women is, like, a seriously good part of this job."

HOW/MUCH FUN WAS IT DESTROYING THE REPUCA OF THE GUGGEN HEIM IN THAT MOVIE?

It's weird. We took a trip there before we began shooting, and the woman who was showing us around on behalf of the museum turned to me at one point and said, "It's about time there was a shootout in this place."

YOU AND NAOM! WATTSHAYEAMAZING CHEWISTRY IN THE INTERNATIONAL, BUTTHE TWO OFYOU NEVER HOOK UP. WERE YOU BUMMED OUT ABOUTTHAT?

Ha, Ilove Naomi, but there wasn't any ofthat.

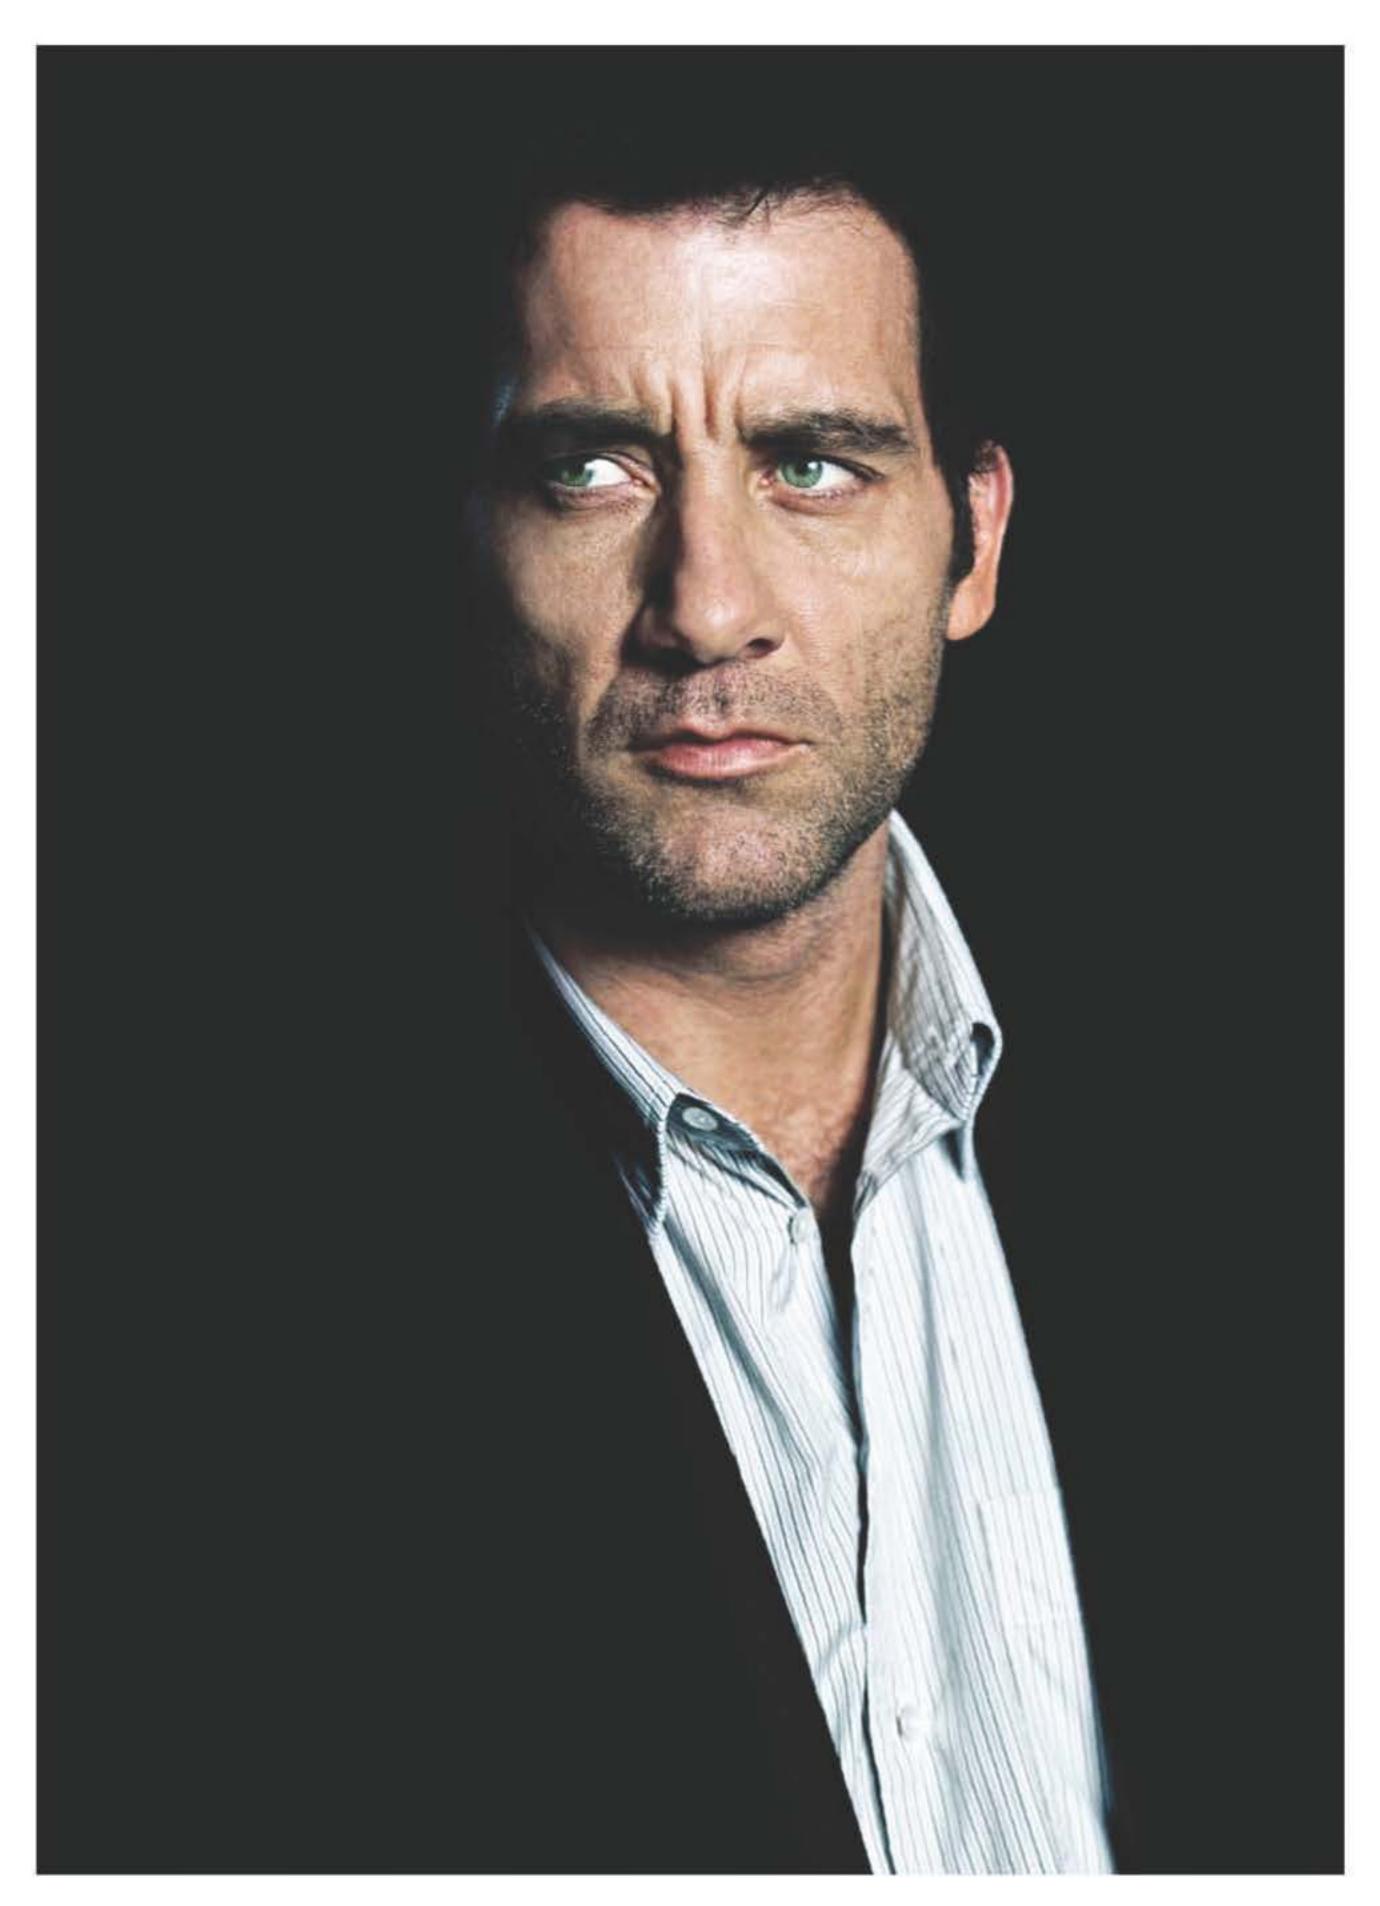

WHAT ON EARTH DIDYOU AND SPIKELEETALK ABOUTWHEN YOU WERE MAKING INSIDE MIAN?

Spike is crazy about sports, but I was shocked that he's very into soccer, just like me. I was skeptical at first, but he actually knows what he's talking about. Heeven carmeover to England forthe Ansenal Liverpool game, which we went to together.

DID HETAKE YOU TO ANY KNICKS GAMES?

That was our first meeting. We didn't actually talk about Inside Man at all; he just said at the end of the game, "So you doing it or what?"

Duplicity opens March 20, and The International is in theaters now.

VOU'VE PLAYED AN EVIL CYBORG NAMED NUMBER SIX FOR THE PAST FIVE SEASONS OF BATTLESTAR GALACTICA. SHE'S APPEARED IN MANY GUISES-WHIICH IS YOUR FAVORITE?

Well, playing the bleach-blonde version caused all my hair to fall out, so not that one! I think my favorite was Gena, the beaten and abused brunette. It was the first time Iwas challenged a bit as an actress and not just wearing a red dress, whispering in Baltar's ear.

SPEAKING OF BALTAR, WAS IT EVER AWKWARD CANOODLING WITH YOUR ON-SCREEN LOVE INTEREST, THE MUCH SHORTER JAMES CALLIS?

Yeah, there's a height difference, but it doesn't really matter. In the very beginning, I think James was more worried about it. The very first scene we ever shot together was a love scene. It was like, "Hey, nice to meet you. Let's get our clothes off." And, of course, they put me in stilettos and he was in slippers. Cut to a few years later, and he's definitely over the initial, "Holy shit, she's tall!"

DO YOU GRAYITATE HOWARD INTIMIDATING CHARACTERS LIKE SIX, OR IS THAT JUST HOW ITWORKEOOUT?

A little bit of both. I grew up in rural Camada driving tractors, and now I ride motorcycles. I hate chicks who are girly girls, so maybe that attracts me to stronger roles. And I don't have a pretty little voice, but I can have a commanding or sultry tone. You want mywoice, you got my voice. I think a lot of people are actually a little scared of me.

WEREYOUASCIENCEFICTION FAN BEFOREVOU SIGNED ON FOR BATTLESTAR?

I didn't seek out a science fiction show, and I wouldn't call myself a science fiction fan. Even though that's what Iwatchedas a kid. Wedidn't have a TV, so we'd only see movies that my dad wanted to see. Iwatched Star Trek and Star Wars growing up.

SOWHATSNEXT?

I've pretty much got an audition every day. I also have a passion project I'd love to get produced and star in. I'm still relatively new in this business, though, so I don't want to branch out too far. Ithink that sometimes people try to do everything, and it comes off half-assed.

WHICH DOVOU PREFER: ACTING OR YOUR FORMER CAREER AS AMODEL?

There's no question, acting. I mean, I had fun modeling. Idid some partying in New York, getting to go wherever and do whatever I wanted, but I mexer eally got into the scene. I mover tainly not an intellectual, but I have some intellect.

EVER WAKEUP IN ACOLD SWEAT ABOUT WINDING UP ON DISCUSSION PANELS AT SCI-FI CONVENTIONS YEARS FROM NOW?

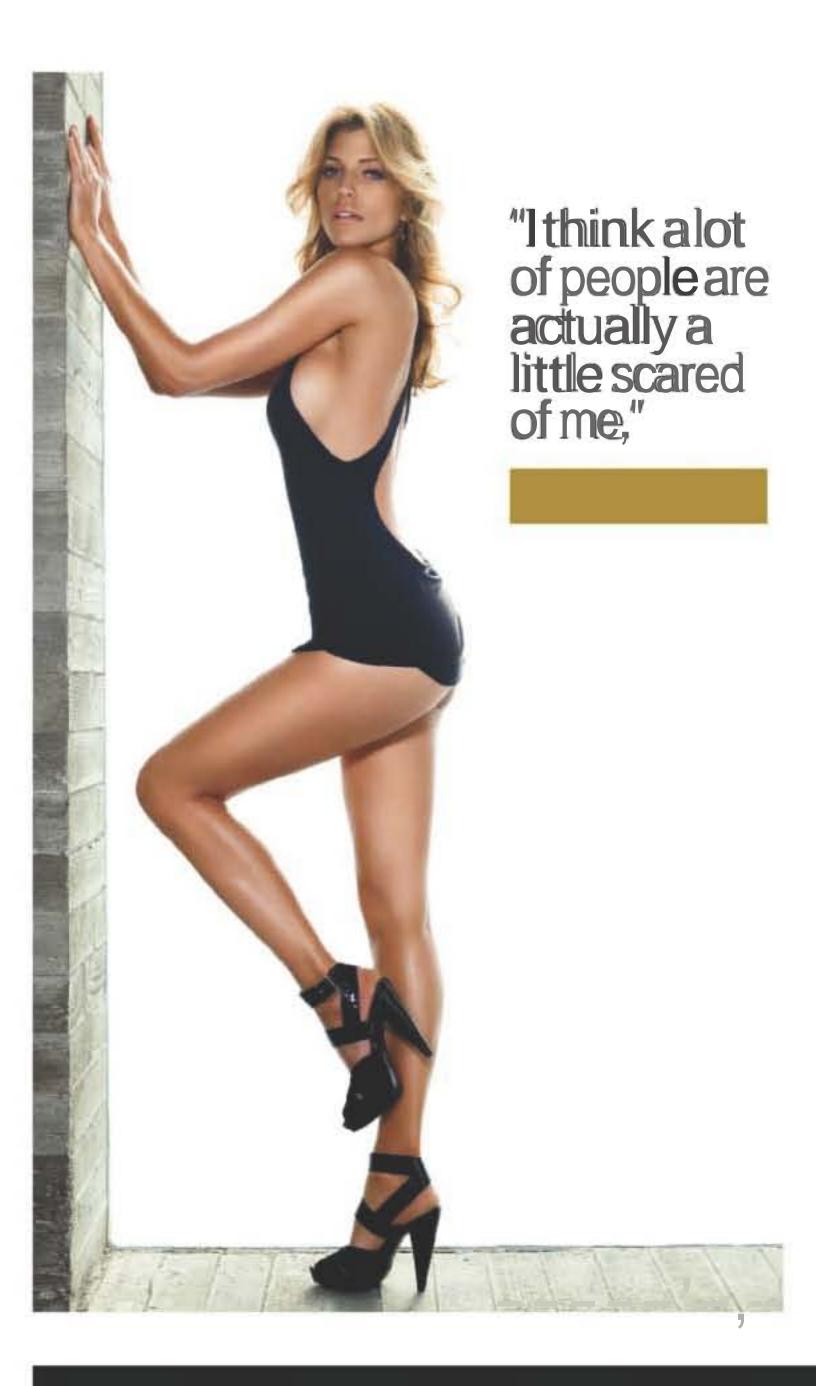

Well, if I never end up getting another job, I think I would look at doing that as a blessing.

SERIOUSLY?

The people who bitch and complain all the time about doing things like Comkc-Con, I just ask, "Well, why are you doing it?" Eithersay no and shut up or say yes and go for it. Personally, I like meeting the fans.

EVENTHECRAZYONES?

Science fiction fansarewely intelligent. It's cute when you get somewhoareexcited—that's fun to see. Sometimes, though, you get the odd ducks who are really nelwous; they're the ones who go to the extreme, and you have to say, "OK, I have to go now!"

What each metaphorical masterpiece of a season really means.

Season 1

Season 2

Human civil liberties take a hit; there are rigged ballots, battles over abortion, and domestic spies. Imagine our 2004 election, but with sexy robots.

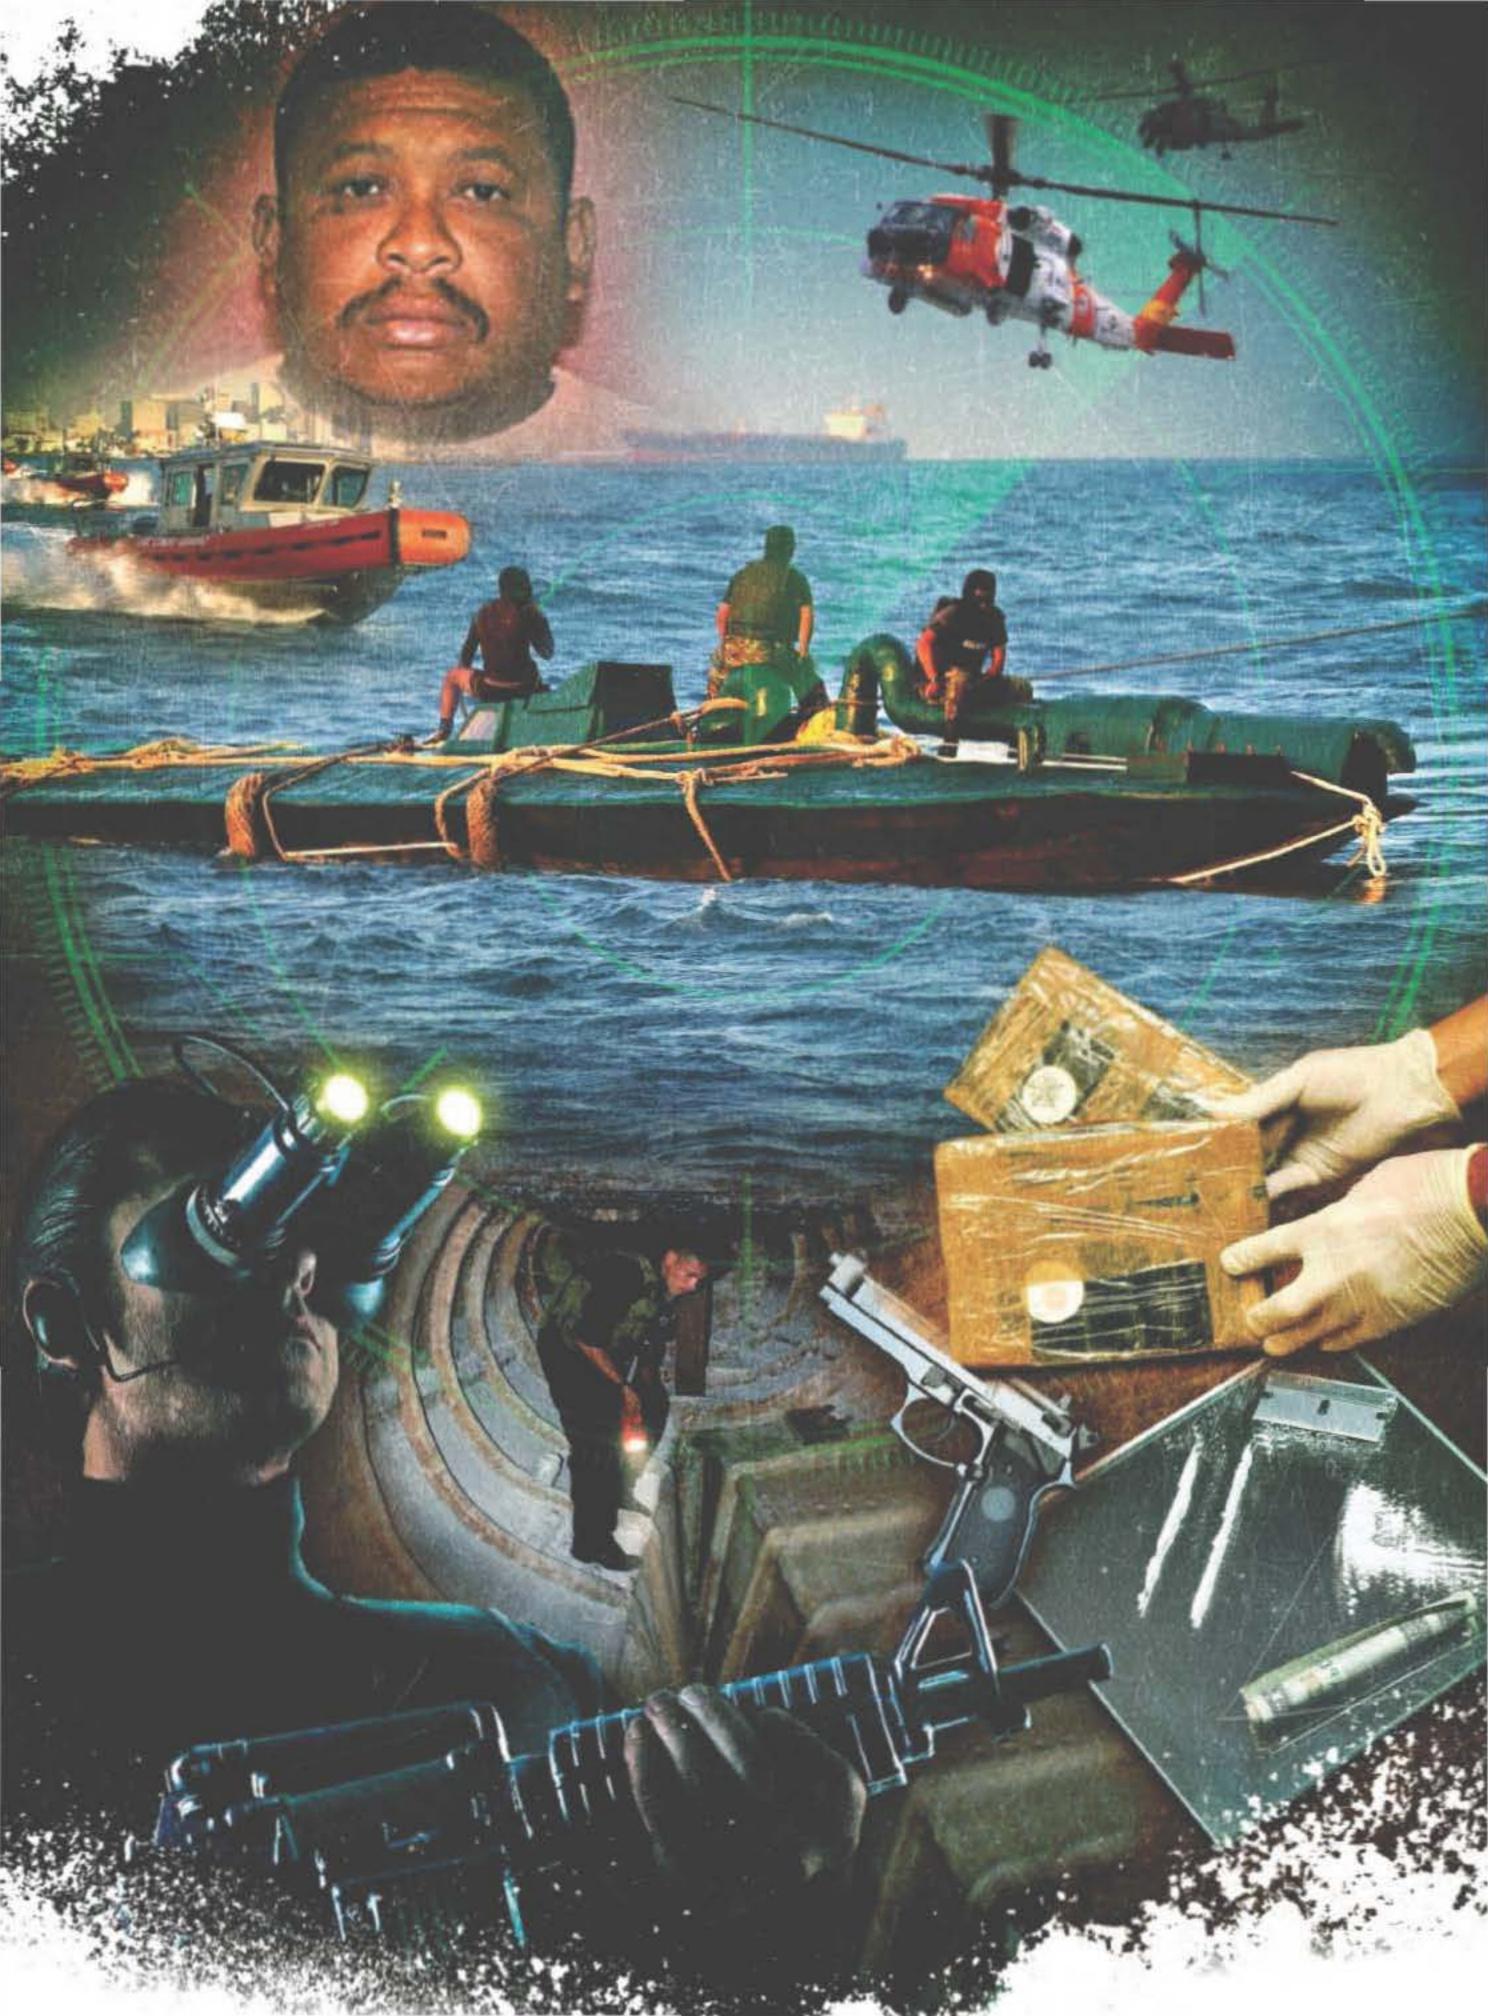

Season 3

The refugees find a home, only to be discovered and enslaved by the Cylons. Iraq-style suicide bombings and Abu Ghraib hoods ensue.

Season 4

The humans finally discover Earth, only to find that it was originally all Cylon and it's nuked to hell. At least they'll always have the sexy robots.

HUNT for WHITE OCTOBER

As Colombian traffickers continue their battle to smuggle cocaine onto the streets of America a new front has developed in the war on drugs: below the surface of the ocean. An inside look at the world of drugs subs, and the men trying to catch them.

BY FRANK OWEN ILLUSTRATION BY ERIC HEINTZ

THERE'S A POPULAR SAYING INTHE PORT CITY OF BUENAVENTURA; "Those who talk are carried away by the tide."

So it's understandable that Diego Morales doesn't want to reveal too many details about why he agreed to undertake such a perilous mission. All he will say is that his sister owed money to the wrong people. And owing money to the Wrong people in Colombia's new cocaine capital is a good way to end up dead.

"I needed a lot of pesos fast or they were going to kill her," says Morales, §2, a sullen-looking fireplug of a man with a scar over his right eye.

Imagimethe relief, then, when the offercame: 30,000 American dollars, half now, the other half when the work was completed, a mind-boggling amount of money for someone used to living on the equivalent of $5 a day. And all he had to do, he was told, was go on a fishing trip.

It was August 2007 when Morales was picked up in a truck and taken to a dampestuary on the outskirts of Buenaventura, a vast, tangled network of rivers and inlets bordered by dense jungle. He glimpsed men wearing camouflage uniforms and cradling assault rifles guarding something half-submerged in the muddy oreek. Morales was expecting a fishing boat, so he was puzzled to see a rustycigar-shaped metal contraption about 60 feet long and eight feetwide. Suddenly, it dawned on him what it wass—a narco-submariflo, the latest weapon in the Colombian drugtrafffickers' campaign to smuggle cocaine into NorthAmerica. Morales had heard the stories about fishermen who went on one of these deadly vessels and never came back.

"I didn't know I was going tô be traveling in a vessel underwater," he says. "But I couldn't say no. When someone takes you to one of these things and you say no, you can lose your life."

The coke was already in place, five tons wrapped in plastic and tightly packed in the fore and aft. Morales was ordered aboard, and he squeezed his thick frame through the hatch into the sub, where he saw three figures crouching in the shadows: the burly captain, Artun O Gonzalez; a me-

The interiors melked of rusty iron, and the walls dripped with condensation. Morales had worked on some junkers in his nearly four decades as a fisherman, but nothing like this. "There was nothing inside except cocaine—no beds, no toilets, no kitchem," says Morales. The Captain told him the mission would take about eight days. The assignment was to transport the contraband, worth about $100 million on the streets of America. Though the crew didn't know it, they were headed some 1,700 miles to Mexico's Gulf of Tehuamtepec. Morales' job was to help Gonzalez and steer the mini-subwhen the captain was asleep.

Ready to go, Captain Gonzalez started up the 350-horsepower diesel engine and rode the receding tide out of the estwary, puttering at a slow and steady five knots into the darkness of the Pacific.

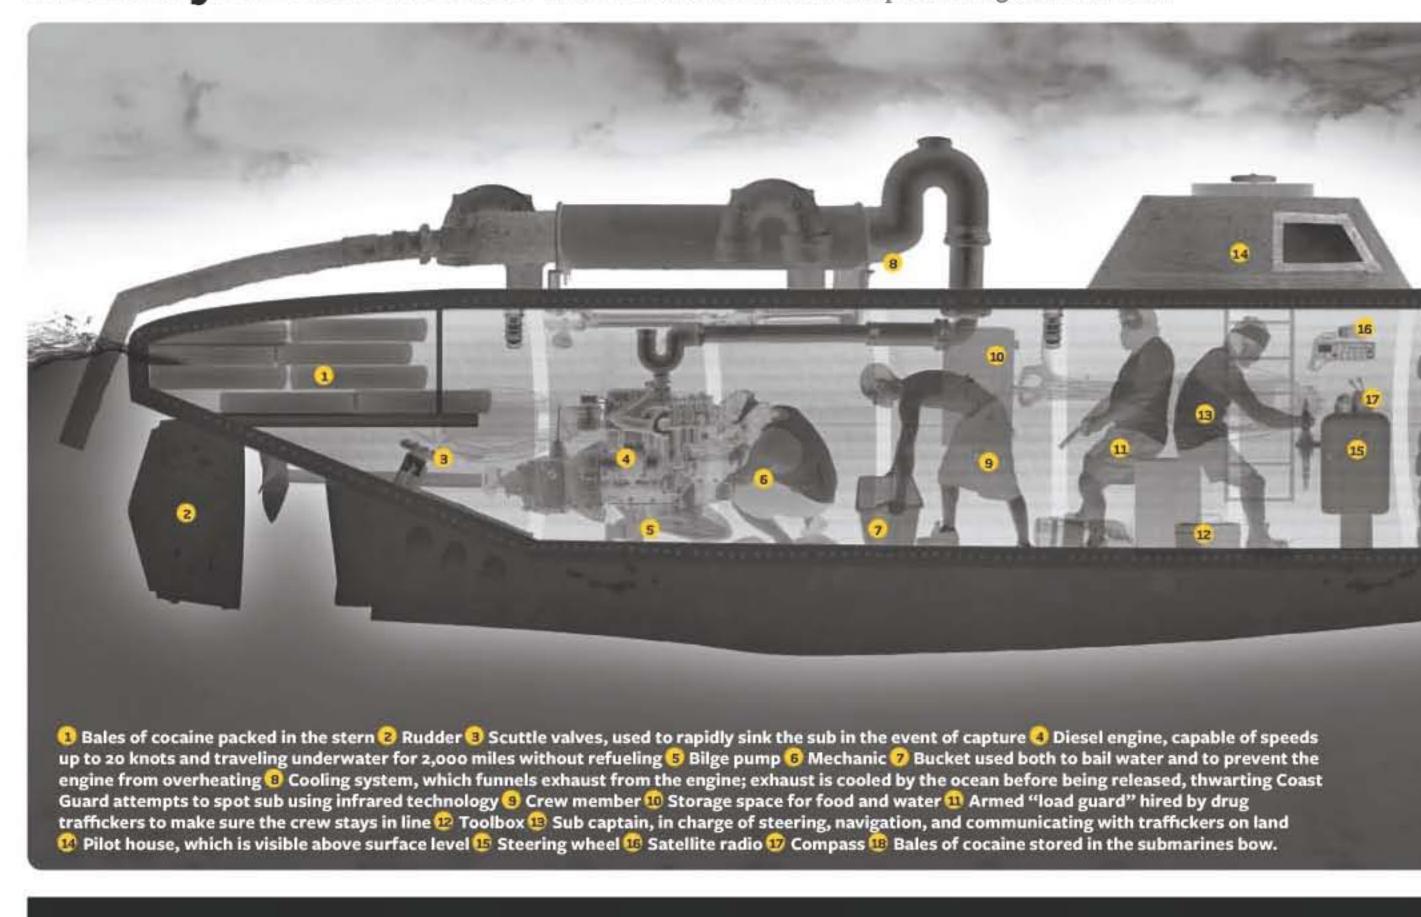

* * * *

THE FRONT LINE INTHEWAR ON DRUGS HAS NOW SHIFTED UNDERwater. The U.S. Coast Guard callist hese cocaime submarines SPSSs (self-propelled semi-submersibles) because they don't dive like military subsubt glide just below the surface of the water. Sightings of the vessels have skyrocketed in the last year. Rack in 2006 the Coast Guard detected only three; now they are spotting as many as 10 a month. Last year alone more drug subswere seized at sea and on dry land than in the emtire previous decade. According to the DEA, as much as a third of the cocaime that arrives on American shores comes via these sometimes comical conveyances. They're usually bound for Mexico's west coast, where the cocaine is off-loaded onto speedboats or fishing vessels and taken ashore, while the sub is scuttled.

"We can't say exactly how many there are and how many are getting through," says one DEA source. "But there's a lot."

Regarded as a joke by law enforcement when they first appeared in the early 1990s, the prototypes were jerry-built contraptions, difficult to steer and limited in how far they could travel and how much cocaine they could hold. Now, with a new fleet of faster, more seaworthy vessels that can travel as much as 2,000 miles without refueling, the U.S. government officially regards cocaine submarines as "an emerging threat."

Anatomy of a Cocaine Sub Adetailed look at the lattest weapon in drug lords arsenals.

Commander Timothy Espinoza of the U.S. Coast Guard told a recent maritime security conference, "An SPSS can smuggle i0 to 12 tons of coke without detection. What else can they smuggle: momey, guns, illegal aliens, terrorists, weapons of mass destruction?"

These subscostupwands of $1 million, which sounds substantial until you realize that each vessel carries cocaine worth 100 times that amount. They're built in secret jungle shipyards on the outskirts of Buenaventura, protected by armed guards and shielded from aerial surveillance by a thick canopy of trees and near constant doudbower. While their construction may be a secret, their existence isn't. Every body in Buenaventura knows about the narco-subs. People line up at the dockside for a chance to work on one. For some in the slums, a job on one of these boats is like winning the lottery, a ticket out of deprivation.

THE FIRST COUPLE OF DAYS WERE INTOLERABLE. WITH NOWHERE to lie down, the Hew had to sleep sitting up, eyes half-closed, leaning on one another's shoulders. They survived on stale bread and canned tuna, and if they needed 10 relieve themselves, the captain had to surface the vessel, and the crew would defecate with the fishes.

Worst of all was the punishing humidity. Morales had to keep pouring water over the engine to prevent it from overheating, releasing clouds of steam that turned the narrow spake into a sauna. It was so hot the crew worked in their underweit. The ventilation system that poked up through the surface of the water didn't provide nearly enough air in the cramped quarters for four people.

Morales' main role was to steer the submarine when the captain was otherwise occupied. A compass sitting on top of a metal box guided the way, and Morales could see where the wessel was headed by looking through a narrow slit level with the ocean surface. But only the captain was allowed to communicate with the traffickers via the radio.

By the seventh day, food and dhimking waterwere running low. Things were officially desperate. Wherewere they going? The captain refused to say. The traffickers had sworn him to secrecy on pain of death.

Then, in the early evening, the Mexican load guard popped his head up through the hatch to get a breath of fresh air and looked up to see a propeller-powered military plane circling overhead. He rushed back below and told his comrades:

"Americanass"

The captain turned off the engine, fearful that the U.S. plane might fire at them. And then the sub started to leak. Throughout the woyage, Gonzalez had to stop periodically and surface to let Morales pump out puddles of water. But this time the Pacific@cean roared into the interior, and soon the panicked new was up to its knees, frantically operating bilge pumps in a futile attempt to halt the tide. They thought about abandoning ship, but were worried about being eaten by sharks. So instead they donned their life vests and clambered onto the deck, where they waved T-shirts in the air in a frantic attempt to attract the attention of the military plane. What if the Americans couldn't reach them in time? Galindo the load guard predicted that they were all going to die.

ON THE EVENING OF AUGUST 20, 2007, THE USS DE WERT OUT OF MAY-flower, Florida was on a routine counter-narcotics patrol in the eastern Pacific about 300 miles southwest of the Mexicam-Guatemalan border when the call came in. AU.S. Navy marine patrol airplane had just spotted a suspicious vessel about 35 miles away. "It looks like a fucking submarine;" one of the surprised Navy airmen blurted overthe radio.

The captain ordered the De Wert to change coullse to intercept the SPSS. Below deck, LEDET 102, a U.S. Coast Guard law enforcement deployment team led by Petty Officer Nathan Fornicola, was preparing to conduct what is called an ROV (right of visit). At 26, Fornicola had six years of service with the Coast Guard. He had joined the service two years out of high school in San Morales and now led a group of men, many of whom were not long out of high school themselves.

At approximately 1:30A.M., Fornicola and his five-man team dropped over the side of the DeWert and into a high-speed inflatable boat headed for the target zone. The Navy patrol plane flew overhead to guide them. About a mile from the vessel's last reported position, they saw a faint light flickering in the distance.

As they dosed in on the position, they noticed four people in the water, all of them wearing life jackets, one of them holding a flashlight. Their vessel was gone, but the crewwas still very much alive.

Officer Steven Lutzyelled in Spanish. "What happened to your boat?" "It sank," a voice in the darkness replied.

With rifles and side antils trained on them, the survivors were instructed to swim to the boat one at a time. Once safely on board, Fornicola told Lutz to ask the crew members where they came from. Three said they were Colombian, the other said he was Mexican. Fornicola noticed that the Colombians were nervous. Not so the Mexican.

"Relax," he said in English.

Asked what happened to their vessel, Galimdo stamped his foot on the deck and said, "Therewassacrack in the boat:"

The subcrew had spent about a half-hour in the frigid water, but they looked in fairly good physical shape, so Fornicola brought the survivors aboard the DeWert. The whole crew felt relieved. They were alive, and as far as they knew, they were in the dlear, the evidence 3,000 feet below on the Ocean floor.

After securing Morales and his pals in the ship's brig, Fornicola, accompanied by Officer Lutz and Officer Michael Karnoff, headed back out to see if there was any debris left behind. Karnoff, 30, the oldest member of the team, was at the front of the speedboat when he first noticed a plastic water bottle bobbing on the water. Fornicola's ears pricked up at the news. Then Karnoff spotted what looked like a plastic-covered brick, then another, and another, followed by a burlap sack that contained what looked like 20 individually wrapped kilos of cocaine. IWo hours later two small boats laden with 11 bales and 60 bricks—five tons in all—headed backtothe DeWert.

It was a big win for the U.S. Coast Guard, the sort of bust that garners headlines, which it did on CNN and other news outlets. Fornicola and his team had managed to retrieve enough drugs to send Morales and company 10 federal prison for long stretches. Still, it nagged at him that they had failed to capture the wessel before it sank. Every time the Coast Guard tried to board one of these subs, the crews would scuttle them, sending boat and cocaine to the bottom of the Otean. If the Coast Guard could actually capture one and thus be able to examine the technology that powers them, it would shed some light on the drugthaffickers' tactics: how they communicate with each other, how they construct these subs. They might even be able to disscover who was building them.

WITHITHE DEMISE OFTHECALIAND MEDEILÍN CARTELS INTHE 1990S, some observers incorrectly predicted the beginning of the end of the Andean cocaine trade. By 2000 it was practically impossible to ship coke of any great weight through the Caribbean, so drugtraffickers turned to Colombia's untamed Pacific coastline. Instead of declining, cocaine production boomed as the role of the Revolutionary Armed Forcess of Colombia, better known by their Spanish acronym, FARC, took on a new importance. The FARC needed the money to buy weapons and to continue to finance the inhalf-century-long struggle against the Colombian government. Now they took on a more active role, not just pro-

"The FARC became the FedEx of the cocaine business," says Daniel Castillo, a Tampa defense lawyer who's represent ed several foreign maritime cocalines mugglers caught at sea by the Coast Guard. "They don't own the product, but make money by ensuring it's delivered to the right address.."

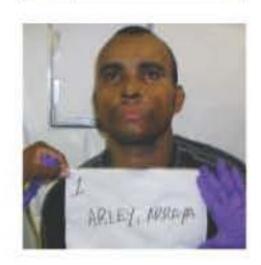

Buenaventura blockaded. And even if a FARE drug boat made it into international waters, the U.S. Navy and Coast Guard were there waiting. A multipronged crackdown on maritime cocaine trafficking called Operation Panama Express was eating into the narco-terrorists' profit margins. "The success of Operation Panama Express in stemming cocaine traffiddingowenthe water is a big part of the reason why the Colombians went underwater," says Castillo.

The FARC turned to a shadowy Colombian man nicknamed Captain Nemo for help. Enrique Portocarrero was a shrimp fisherman by trade who once worked at a commercial dry dock, where he learned the rudiments of boat design. He proved to be something of a prodigy. Short and squat, with the crumpled face of a bulldog, he owned a shipyard about 10 miles south of Buenaventura, where, according to Colombian law enforcement, he invented a new generation of narco-subs—sleek V-shaped fiberglass boats specially designed for stealth. The only thing visible above the water line was the top of the pilot house, along with the goosenecked ventilation and exhaust pipes, which gave the vessels the appearance of something dreamed up by Jules Verme. Each boat was custom-designed to carry a specific load. A key feature of the boats was the scuttle valves that Portocarrero installed, which enabled the crew to flood and sink the vessel along with the incriminating evidence if they were stopped.

Nemo's were fairly easy to construct. Portocarrero would build a ship's mold, put the fiberglass in place, buy adiiesel engine, and procure navigation and communication devices. Though the design was simple, the boats took a long time to construct, three months or more, mainly because Portocarrero had to staggerthedeliveries of materials to avoid being caught. Captain Nemo's subs were ideally suited to their task. For the time being, though, Portocarrero remained something of a mystery. Law enforcement didn't know where or from whom he got his materials, nor how many subs he was capable of churning out. If the authorities could just get their hands on one of his wessels, they would achieve a rousing will tory in the war on drugs. They might disrupt the supply lines, halt the trade at the source, may be even get Captain Nemo himself.

apprehended in the USS DeWert incident, the Coast Guard received an urgent bulletin from Operation Panama Express saying that a suspicious vessel had left Buenaventura on August 31, 2008 at around nine at night heading north-northwest. Rattherthan relying on luck to stumble across one of these cocaine submarines in the vastness of the Pacific, this time the Coast Guard had actual advance intelligence. If the operation was planned correctly, they would be able to seize one of Captain Nemo's vessels before it sank.

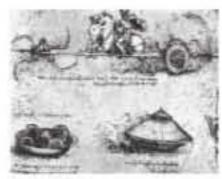

Just after midnight on September 17, 2008, Petty Officer Allberto Delgado was relaxing in his bunk on the USSIMcInemey, when he received the word he had been waiting for all day. The SPSS had been spotted 350 miles off the coast of Guatemala. Delgado stood in the door of the cramped sleeping quarters and told the members of his crew the good news: "Wake up. We found it." The five other members of the crew pulled themselves out of their bunks and sprung to attention. Then they went over the plan of attack.

Delgado had 12 years' experience in the Coast Guard. Overthe years he'd boarded hundreds of vessels looking for drugs: trawlers, cargo ships, tankers, you name it. He was proud of the fact that he'd helped seize, in total, about 16 tons of cocaine worth nearly $300 million.

But that night, equally as important as the cocaine was the vessel itself. Federal lawyers back in Tampa were having difficulty prosecuting the operators of the SPSS's without the vessel as evidence.

In the predawn hours Delgado's team headed out to capture the SPSS. It was quiet in their small, inflatable boat, the atmosphere a mixture of adrenaline and anticipation.

It took nearly an hour to get to the sub. The onlything Officer Delgado could see through his night-vision goggles was the white foam coming out of the back of the vessel. The sub was thrashing through the water at 10 to 12 knots, a steady dlip for an SPSS. Removing his goggles, Delgado instructed one of his team to fire a 40 mm White Star flare. They could now see the strange-looking, goosenecked exhaust pipes that poked out from the top of the 60-foot sub. The Coast Guard boat pulled up parallel, and Delgado and two of his team jumped onto the top of the moving sub. The deck was slick with seawater, and Delgado had trouble keeping his footing. Once aboard, Delgado, a 9 mm pistol in one hand, used his other to bang on the hull.

"Policia. Policia. Americana. Americana!" he shouted.

Suddemly, the sub lurched sharply into reverse, the engine dipping in the ocean, the bow rising out of the water like a surfacing whale.

"Hold on to the pipes," Delgado shouted at the other guardsmen. "Watch out for the propellers!" He worried that his team might slide down the slippery deck and be mangled.

The sub then started making erratic side-to-side movements, trying to shake the guardsmen off the hull. Then the vessel began to sink: six inches at first, then a foot, then three, close to waist high. Somebody inside was throughout the Coast Guard into the ocean.

Delgado could see people carrying knives moving around inside through the porthole and shouted at them to halt.

"Para el bote! Para ellbote!"

It seemed to take forever, but after about four or flive minutes, the sub crew complied with Delgado's command. The steel and fiberglass vessel glided to a halt, the hatch slowly opened, and one of the crew popped up his head. Delgado ordered him back inside at gunpoint. He knew it was a trick: Three crew members would squeeze themselves one at a time through the narrow hatch, giving a fourth member enough time to sink the wessel. Not this time. Delgado dimbed down into the sub and spotted one of the crew in the engine room preparing to open the scuttle valves. He pointed a gun at the engineer and told him to stop what he was doing and put his hands in the air.

Then the groggy crew members—three of whom were as leep when the Coast Guard came calling—were taken outside and ordered to sit atop the sub with their hands on their heads. After being patted down and searched for weapons, they were handcuffed and told they were being detained by the U.S. Coast Guard.

While the smugglers were taken back to the USS McImemey, Delgado stayed with the sub. Battered but relieved, he took a deep breath and headed inside. The interior smelled like a mix of diesel, salt, and dirty feet, and there was a foot ofwater on the floor. Another few minutes and the subwould have sunk. But the living conditions weren't as bad as he expected. The crew had plenty to eat, and there was air conditioning and bunk beds. Despite being at sea two weeks, the quarters were surprisingly tidy. Aftermaking sure the vessel was seaworthy, Delgado started to count the coke. There was a lot, maybe as much as seven tons.

Even more surprising to Delgado was the technical intricacy of the vessel. Captain Nemo had done good work. There was a powerful long-wave radio, a GPS device, and a satellite telephone. Amariner's compass sitting on top of a metal box guided the way. The only retro detail was the wooden steering wheel, which looked like something you'd find on the wall in a kitschy seafood restaurant.

The McInemay towed the coke subtotthe Costa Rican Coast Guard base of Punta Arenas en route to Key West, where the vessel would be taken apart by investigators. Hopefully they would be able to glean waluable information about how the drug traffickers communicated with one another, how they navigated the vessel, and may be even proof of who was building these things and where they got their materials—critical advance intelligence that would help the Coast Guard to better plan interdictions of these coke subs in the future.

"We were very proud, very excited," says Delgado. "It was the first of the new generation of semi-subs ever caught by U.S. government."

ANDWHATOFIHEPEOPILEOFBUENAVENTURA? SECURITY FOR ORDInaty residents has improved somewhat in the last year thanks to President Alvaro Uribe, who dispatched 2,000 marines and Special Forces trained in urban combat to patrol the slums. The city is hardly calm, but the crackdown is having an effect! Murder rates have dropped by percent since 2006. And the narco-temorists are feeling the pinch. The St.
Petersburg Times reported last November that FARC commanders in Busenawemtura were having trouble paying their members because cocaine revenues have been cut in half.

In the meantime, the DEA, in cooperation with the Colombian equivalent of the FRI, is going after the sub builders. In December the culmination of a joint three-year investigation led to the arrest of Buenaventura's very own Captain Nemo at his home, where police found $200,000 hidden in the spare tire of his car. The next day armed drug agents descended on Portocarrero's secret shippard and demolished two of the wessels. Enrique Portocarrero is expected to be extradited to the United States to stand trial in Tampa. What hasn't improved, and what is unlikely to improve anytime soon, is the appalling living conditions that drive the desperate to risk their lives. As far as real estate goes, for 80 percent of the population it's still hell with an ocean view.

"I'wepersonally heard DEA agents down in Buenaventura say that if they had to grow up in these types of conditions, it says a Spanish interpreter who works with American law enforcement, "they'd be the first one to get on one of these subs."

Meanwhile, Diego Morales is in federal prison in Florida for the next eight years, thankful that his sister is still alive, though he misses her. He rues the day he ever set foot on the cocaine bathtub.

He sighs in Spanish, "Fuffomlos peores sietedias de mi vida."
"It was the worst seven days of my life."

Caribbean Confidential

Kick sand in the face of overpriced tourist traps and score more bang for your spring-break buck with our guide to the best beaches, hottest girls, and awesomest most affordable island adventures!

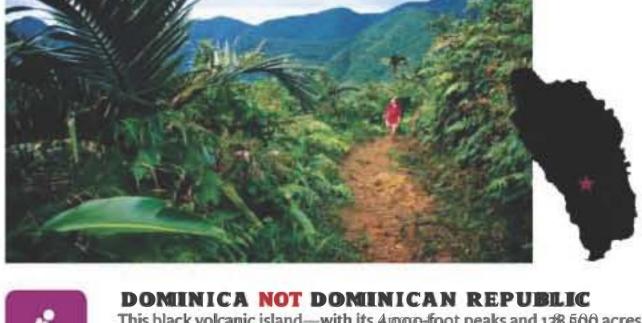

BARBADOS NOT COSTA RICA

A tsunami of surfers will be tripping over their board leashes to get to Costa Rica's Caribe side, so head to the best blue-watenwaves in the region—the secluded eastern coast of Barbados, surf legend Kelly Slater's favorities pot in the Caribbean. The right-hand barrels at Bathsheba Beach, affectionately called Soup Bowl for its frothy swells, can rise to a feansonned if feet in the winter. During the spring the pipes consistently curl at a less bloodcurdling five to eight feet, reports Surfing Magazine editor Evan Slater.

Fins of fury: Catch some fried flying fish and Bajaaspiced mac and cheese at the weekly Friday night Oistin's Fish Fry—a locals-only 88Q hosted by the island's shack chefs. Wash it down with local Banks beer.

This black volcamic island—with its 4,000-foot peaks and 1,28,500 acres of lush rainforest—has arguably more protected nature reserve per capita than anywhere else in the Caribbean. Even better, it has none of the DR's all-imclusive meganessotss—or pesky clvil uprisings! "It's a breathtakingly beautiful island that's somehow still undeveloped and unexplored," says Gary Buslik, author of A ROTE'n Person Travels the Caribbean. Jungles dominate this rugged paradise, but there are plenty of pristine waterfalls, mountains, hot springs, and lawa beds to explore. The best beach is Batibou Bay, a hidden lagoon ringed by ced rock cliffs. Dirt-cheap digs: Sea Cliff Cottages. Private villas perched on a cliff overlooking Hodges Bay for just $99 a night! dominica-cottages.com

MARGARITA ISLAND NOT CANCÚN

Skip trying to pick up sloppy sorority girls at Cancún's Señor Frog's and head to the debaucherous spring-break paradise that is Venezuela's Margarita Island. Come April, throngs of thong-wearing Venezuelan coeds descend on this white-sand mecca for their annual bacchanal. And the good news is that casual hookups are the norm here, notes Omar Mourad, co-owner of Kamy Beach, one of the hottest dance clubs on the island. The best beach here is anywhere the land meets the Ocean (and, yes, they're all topless), but our favorite is the über-secluded Punta Arenas.

Get your grind on: Kamy Beach boasts $1 beers, strippers in cages, and thousands of Latina lovelies gyrating to ceggaeton until dawn.

BONAIRE NOT CAYMAN ISLANDS

Like the Cayman's, Bonaire is devoted to scuba and little else—but without the oiled-up flocks of jet-setting Euro dudes in banana hammocks. Bonaire has some of the best diving in the world, with 87 marked sites including the wreck of the Hilma Hooker, a freighter that was hauling 12 tons of pot and cocaine before it sadly sank off the island's best dive beach: Angel City. Don't forget to sign up for one of Bonaine's famous night dives to gawk at the bioluminescent fish, which look like pastel lasers streaking the murky deep.

Locavores only: Skip the tourist-infested City Café and head to Gibi's, a snack shack run out of the chef's house that serves the freshest local fare, like goat stew and yuanastoba, a.k.a. iguanasoup. Bon appétit!

Sake Made Simple

Since this 36-proof elixir is a brew of rice, water, and yeast, sake is technically rice beer, not rice wine. Sake Warietals are determined by how much the rice kernel is "pollished" away, salvs Shige Kawamura, sake sommelier at Megu restaurant in N.Y.C. Polishing involves shucking off rice's more impure oliter layers. The more it's polished, the smoother the sake and, most importantly, the gentler the hangovers. Domo anigato.

Hot Vs. Cold

If sake is served hot, it's usually to mask a harsh brew; if served cold, subtleties are stripped away. "The trick is to drink it at about room temperature," says Masaharu Morimoto of TV's Iron Cheff "Too hot or too cold and you risk destroying flavors," he tells us. is for OLD SCHOOL. So-called checkerboard lacing is the way to go this spring, according to our hipster experts. The interwoven lacing forms a supercool two-color checkerboard pattern that works perfectly with today's wide-front sneakers. Start with two different-color sets of laces (flat ones preferred). Then go ahead and tile one on.

 With one color, run the lace straight across the bottom and into both bottom eyelets. One end of the lace is fed straight up the left side all the way and emerges from the top left eyelet.

The other end runs straight up the right side, then emerges and runs straight across the second set of eyelets, working its way up and across, back and forth through eyelets.

With the second-color lace, start at the bottom of the shoe and weave the lace in and out of the other lace until you reach the top. Fold around the top lace and weave back down.

Continue across the shoe until you're out of room or out of lace, whichever comes first. Tuck all the loose ends of the laces into the shoe. Hit the pavement.

Male Enhancement Pills ... Is it a Hoax or Do They Really Work?

Dr. Daniel Stein, M.D.

I wish I had a dollar for every patient or person that asked me over the last few years about instreasing the size of "that certain part of the male body." The preoccupation with size that men have is a mystery to most women. The fact is it is completely normal for most men to want to be larger. It doesn't matter if they are smaller than average, average, or larger than average. It's even been my experience that guys that are almost too big, so big in fact that many women woot go near them with a ten foot pole (somy about that) still want to be larger!

I was so intrigued by this fact that I started to do research about the "so called" male enhancement pills that came on the market several years ago. The concept that a simple pill could noticeably increase the size of a man's organ seemed plausible, but I wanted to know more. I had done much research over the years about certain search that years about certain selected the concept was sould that a pill could be that to have I man larger.

My first task was to look at some of the ads I had seen in magazines for male enhancement. There were some amazing claims by many of these makers. My personal favorite was a cream that claimed to make men instantly larger. I had to laught out loud when I read what it said. The ad read, Mapply cream, rub vigorously, increase your size." I thought for a minute and then decided you could put virtually anything on a man, including guacamole, and if he rubbed vigorously it would increase his size. Then there was an ad for a pill, that if taken daily, would increase the length off a man by 3 to 4 inches in just a few short days (somy about the "short" comment).

I'm koffy, but after all those years of medical kickeol, I know enough about know to know that a guy who is 5 inches in length isn't going to add 3 to 4 inches to his little friend unless he buys a rope, getts a large brick, finds a bridge and...well, you get the picture. At about this time I was beginning to think that perhaps these makers hadn't found the magic mixture of compounds I had hoped they might have.

As the founder of both the Stein Medical Institute and the Foundation for Intimacy, I have spent thost of my adult life trying to improve men and women's sexual health. I pride myself on being the best medical doctor I can be and my reputation is important to me. So, when out of the clear blue sky, I got a call from the makers of Extenze, the leader in male enhancement, wanting me to be in one of their TV combifications, I thought, "Boy, did they pick the wrong guy!"

"a pill that, iff taken daily, would increase the length off a man by 3 to 4 inches."

Little did they know that I had done really search into this Condept and had receptly looked at some of these male enhancement products. But the makers of Extenze section to be seculainely convinced that their product really worked, and they claim to have $0\text{ld OWer 100 million capsules to men all over the world. 'OWer 100 million capsules taken by men." With that single declaration, they had my interest. Either Extenze really worked or these guys were the world's greatest 5nake oil salesmen. So I requested that they send me Extenze formula so I could review it, iheli we would talk.

I then visited the Extenze.com web site, where I found a page that showed the top twelve adult film that, all holding Extenze and endorsing it. I thought to myself, "Is it possible Extenze actually WORS?"

The neXt day I received the proprietally Extenze formula and there it was, virtually all of the ingredients that I hoped would be in a male enhancement product, 19 pharmaceutical grade nutraceuticals. There was Yohimbe (which used to be available by prescription only,) L-Atginine, Maca...all of it was there.

I contacted the makers of Extenze the very next day and asked them what they needed me for. They explained that they had a desire to have a medical doctor in their T.V. commercials to talk about the diffectiveness of the ingradients in Extenze. At that moment is ideas plant into toy head. I told them if they would let me improve the formula of Extenze, I would do the commental for free!

Before I knew it I was working with their

"they claim to have sold almost a quarter off a billion capsules to men."

chemists at the Hilbhufalcturing plant where we added the most revolutionary thing to the formula of Extenze. We added DHEA, also known that the "mother of all hormones." DHEA is the most important human prohormone and is the prohormone that COONCIUs into Destosterone in men. DHEA levels decrease with the aging. Production peaks in a man's early 20's, and declines about 10% every 10 years. Low levels of testosterone can lead to low sex drive and a smaller sex organ.

After a few more weeks of tweaking the formula of Extenze, we were done. The new Extenze formula him been selling even bettef then the old formula, with over 75% of sales to repeat customers. Extenze has been on the market for 7 years and has sold dildiost a quarter of a billion capsules 10 more all lover the world old. It doesn't "latter if you're 18 or 80 years old. In my opinion Extenze can make you larger, harder and increase both your intensity and pleasure and it is as silople as taking a single libblet daily. Extenze is so sure it would work for hilyone that they're, sending out a free one-week supply of Extenze for nothing more ukmen the cost of a postage stamp. You can contact them the Coll of a postage stamp. You can contact them the cost of a postage stamp. You can contact them directly II &00-5$6-0302.
